ALL GLENDALE BENEFIT FOR FIVE THORNYCROFT BUDDIES WHO WISH TO LIVE IN HILLS

Merchants, Theatres, the General Public and the Glendale Daily Press to Contribute to the Building of Five Little Homes

SPECIAL EDITION GLENDALE DAILY PRESS

Special Bargain Features to Be Advertised for One Day Only on the Big Edition Which is to Add About $300 to Fund for the Boys

An all Glendale benefit, Disabled Veterans' Day, will be staged by the merchants and theatres of Glendale this week for the purpose of defraying the cost of five little houses for the five soldier boys whose plans to build little homes for them and their families at La Crescenta were cut short by the order of the government evacuating the contract with the Thornycroft sanitarium.

The Glendale Daily Press will issue a special edition. Of the total proceeds, twenty-five per cent, which will be not less than $300, will go to build the little homes.

The theatres are going to be asked to devote a share of their receipts to the cause.

Merchants whose advertisements will appear in the Glendale Daily Press offering unprecedented bargains, will devote a percentage of their sales on that day to the fund which will construct the homes.

An architect has volunteered to draw the plans. A contractor has volunteered to construct the houses.

A lumber company has volunteered to supply the material at cost.

The whole of Glendale's generous public will participate in the great exhibition of patriotic devotion to the young men by patronizing the stores whose advertisements appear in the special edition of the Glendale Daily Press.

The date of the special edition will be announced later. In the meantime, those who are interested in the humble little story of the homely effort of five buddies to plant their hearthstone in La Crescenta, rather than become government charges in a government sanitarium, are invited to call up the Glendale Daily Press.

All money received will be handled by Delos H. Smith of the Los Angeles Trust & Savings bank, as treasurer. John J. Lichtig, one of the buddies, will be secretary of the matter. Mr. Smith may be communicated with at the bank; Mr. Lichtig at the Thornycroft sanitarium.

KIWANIS CLUB ENTERS CITY AT PARTY

Organization Starts With Enough Kick to Carry It Over the Top

The Glendale Kiwanis club was given an impetus at a banquet yesterday in the local chamber of commerce rooms, which unmistakably placed this new society on record as one of the coming big organizations and highly important factors in the development of Glendale. The event was given as a celebration of the club going "over the top" in record time, and also in honor of F. D. Keene, international organizer for the Kiwanis.

Friday morning Messrs. Lyman P. Clark, Henry Kuhns, Don Webb and other live wires who are responsible for the new organization, announced that the required number of 50 members had been obtained and that the meeting at noon was assured. Pasadena Kiwanis club was notified, and came over in large numbers to take part in the jollification. Covers were laid for nearly 100 persons, and the affair was turned over to Judge Kenneth Newell of the Pasadena club, who conducted a typical Kiwanis meeting. The occasion was enlivened by Kiwanis songs and speeches that proved of more than ordinary interest. The Kiwanis, like every other live wire organization, could not exist without the comedian, and Glendale club had more than its quota present. Among the bright lights that suddenly broke loose upon the unsuspecting visitors were Mayor Robinson, City Manager Reeves and Col. Tom Thornton, who seemed to know each other better than any one else present, and their delineations of each other's peculiar characteristics kept the crowd in an uproar for some time.

The real address of the occasion was delivered by Capt. Perigord of the Pasadena club. He crowded more good things in a 15-minute address than would seem possible. He summed up the big idea of the Kiwanis club by saying: "The Kiwanis embodies all the principles that make and keep us true and loyal Americans. I never knew anything of my fellow associates until I became a member of the Kiwanis club. I had been associated with them in a business way but that did not bring out the true human side of my associates—it took the Kiwanis club to enlighten me upon the true lives of my associates. The Kiwanis club stands for getting things done—it truly believes that in organization there is strength.

"You cannot stop the material development of Southern California, and this immediate section in particular, but we must not lose sight of the development of the other side—true character, high ideals and lofty principles. A revolution is now going on in the world and we want the countries of the world to pattern after America—adopt our high ideals, love of liberty and assimilate the ways of doing the most good to the greatest number concerned, and

MISSIONARY TELLS OF INDIA

Brotherhood of First M. E. Holds Banquet; Rev. Olmstead Speaks

A very satisfactory banquet and meeting of the brotherhood of the First Methodist church was held in the social hall of the church Friday evening. W. F. Tower, the president, introduced the speakers, who included the stewardship team of the First M. E. church of Hollywood, composed of Messrs. Bruce, Bradley, Flood and Jones. Their contribution was a sort of experience meeting with regard to tithing, which they practice and advocate. Each one told of the benefits and advantages of the policy.

Mr. Bicknell, president of the Good Will club of North Main street, which is affiliated with the Good Will Industries, told how 63,000 men had been helped by his organization during the past ten months.

Rev. Clarence Olmstead, pastor abroad of the Methodist Episcopal church, who is located in Burma, India, told of conditions there and of work among the natives.

Dr. Joseph Marple led the singing and the evening proved pleasant and profitable for all present. The next meeting will be marged with that of the federated brotherhood, to be held May 18 at the First M. E. church.

Hitch to Something if You Intend to Succeed Says Foley

"Are you hitched to something?" asks James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" tonight. "Are you applying what you know?"

After asking these questions Mr. Foley says we must hitch to something in order to do something, just as the trained individual is hitched to something, a job, an idea, or an ideal. For, he says, religion, education and philosophy, not hitched to something, are merely windmills revolving in the air.

An able editorial on the recognition of Mexico is worth reading tonight.

In the comment on the day's news Henry James speaks of the Long Beach policeman to whom has fallen the distinction of shooting three undesirables. Mr. James also speaks of Grandfather Rockefeller; of the Chicago girl who ran away from church, leaving her expectant bridegroom waiting there, and other items of interest in the day's news.

John Pilgrim and Della Stewart each have feature stories, and Dr. Frank Crane writes of the "people's parlor." There are paragraphs, wise sayings and eastern points of view, all holding the interest of the reader.

EVERINGTON GIVEN OVATION BY HIS COMRADES

Former Police Chief of Los Angeles Addresses Glendale Post

When Comrade James W. Everington of Glendale post No. 127, American Legion, formerly chief of police of Los Angeles, arrived at the meeting of the post last night he was received enthusiastically by fellow members. He was prevailed on to give a short talk to the members. He started his talk with the question asked by his little daughter yesterday. She said: "Daddy, what is being fired?" He said during the address that he did not resign from the position of chief of police in Los Angeles but was fired. Several items with hearing on the case were explained by him that were not commonly known. He told the Legionnaires that one of the members of the department discharged by him and later reinstated by the police commission admitted to him after the hearing that he had not obeyed the orders given by Coolnel Everington because he did not think that they were practicable at this time. He said that the members of the police commission did not support him at the hearing after they had privately admitted to him that the men discharged had not obeyed orders. Colonel Everington said that was the reason he discharged these men.

Commander McBryde told Col. Everington at the conclusion of his address that there was no doubt that the Glendale post of the American Legion was still back of him.

Commander McBryde also called the attention of the members to the fact that all who have not registered should do so in order to vote for the $10,000,000 bond issue to come up at the election on May 2. He said that Registrar Ball would be invited to attend the next meeting of the Glendale post and register all members who have not already done this.

The sick and relief committee was notified that the Ladies' Auxiliary had voted to contribute $10 per month to the charity fund of the Legion and the attention of all members was called to the food

ULTIMATUM ON BRAND TRACKS DELIVERED TO P.E. BY CITY OF GLENDALE

Offers $10,000 as Its Share of Cost of Lowering Rails Suggesting Municipality Has Prior Rights at Crossings

MIGHT CONDEMN LINE TO GRADE LEVELS

Three Hours' Verbal Battle With Railway Officials Results in Clear Understanding of Temperament of People Toward Corporation

The ultimatum of Glendale to the Pacific Electric on the lowering of the company's tracks on Brand boulevard between Colorado avenue and Windsor road is: The city of Glendale will allow $10,000 as its share of the cost. If this is not accepted, it was indicated the city council might condemn all crossings in the disputed area down to grade. This would make the roadbed of the line a series of depressions and grades that would react unfavorably on the road.

After a three-hour verbal battle yesterday with Mayor Spencer Robinson, Councilmen Sam Davis and C. E. Kimlin, and City Manager W. H. Reeves, assisted by James M. Rhoades, secretary of the chamber of commerce, and Val Hollister, president of that organization, officials of the Pacific Electric returned to Los Angeles with Glendale's ultimatum as regards the lowering of the Pacific Electric tracks on Brand boulevard between Colorado street and Windsor road. The ultimatum given by the city officials did not coincide with the proposal of the traction officials, made at the beginning of the meeting.

Frank Karr, attorney for the Pacific Electric; D. H. Pontius, general manager; O. A. Smith, passenger agent, and E. C. Johnson, engineer for the corporation, represented the transportation company at the meeting, which started at 1:30 p. m. yesterday and lasted until 4:30 p. m.

Councilman Davis was the Rock of Gibraltar against which the corporation officials bucked with but little success, and it was Councilman Davis who uncovered the excessive amount the Pacific Electric is said to have tried to collect from Glendale for the lowering of its tracks on Brand boulevard. The corporation claimed the job would cost approximately $100,000 and that the city's share of the expense should be $50,000. The city's ultimatum as given the Pacific Electric was that the city of Glendale will grant the Pacific Electric $10,000 as this municipality's share in the reconstruction of the lowering of the tracks to the present street level. It was also intimated to the corporation representatives that in the event the Pacific Electric refuses these terms the city council will in all probability condemn all of the Pacific Electric grade crossings in the disputed area to street level and force the company to lower the crossings to the desired level. It was explained to the railway officials that this action would make the roadbed of the line very uneven and would not be to the best interests of the company. The Pacific Electric was given until Wednesday to accept or reject the city's terms.

Mr. Pontius said to one of the city representatives after the meeting that it was more than probable that the corporation would accept the terms laid down at the meeting.

There was no talk regarding the operation of a bus line between Los Angeles and this city, as at the beginning of the meeting the delegation from the Pacific Electric were instructed to forget all bus propositions or other side issues they were contemplating, as these offers would not be heeded.

At the beginning of the conference the Pacific Electric officials said that the job of lowering the tracks between Windsor road and Colorado street would cost approximately $100,000 and that the city's share of the cost would be approximately $70,000. Councilman Davis entered the verbal arena with the query as to what the company intended doing that would cost $100,000. He was informed that when the tracks were lowered the Pacific Electric intended putting in new ties and rails which would bring the sum up to the above amount. Later in the conference Mr. Pontius made the statement that the rails and ties now in use would last for another ten years.

Councilman Davis said that the $50,000 asked by the Pacific Electric as the city of Glendale's share in the lowering of the tracks would cover the entire cost of the job, including new rails and ties, which the city did not want and had not asked for, and a thick asphaltum paving between the tracks.

After considerable argument the officials in an estimate of the cost of the job said that the estimated cost of lowering the tracks would be about $69,000 and that the paving would cost $33,000. A later estimate by the city officials and admittedly nearer correct than the first was $85,000 for the entire job, but it was pointed out by Councilman Davis that the Pacific Electric officials were figuring in as expense certain paving that would be paid for by the citizens of Glendale and would not affect the Pacific Electric in any way.

Our Five Buddies

Do you know what a buddie is? Used to be a bunkie, in the days when the Winchester ruled and Los Angeles was a sand lot and the Verdugo Hills were not and Remington was.

He's the man whose blanket you shared. Who'd fight for you at the drop of a word. And came through.

Five buddies, bunkies—our bunkies—for they went through for us all. Took their medicine, bitter in the days of their youth.

They have not asked, would not think of asking, aid from you. They were found by the Press, busy with all the youth that's left them, reconstructing their lives, set back, you know, five years by the war. Trying to get hold of a little bit of home earth, so that they could face front again, fall into the pace of the wrold. Five years behind the column, of course, but the instinct of hopeful youth urged them on with the rest of us—us fellows who are well and strong and able to give and take.

The Press found them. The merchants of the city paused in the red-blooded fight and competiton to listen to the five who were struggling up from so far behind.

So we are all together in the big special edition of the Glendale Press. All the merchants, all the theatres, all the channels where money passes about the city. Not begging. No. Wouldn't be fair to our buddies. Just asking you to buy from us all on the day that will be announced Monday. Buy until you buy all you really need and a few of the useless things you would have bought without a thought back there when war money was plentiful here—when the five buddies lined up by fate and the government for that bitter medicine that sent them back in youth, strength and career.

Cut out the buyers' strike instinct, just for the day and—five comfortable little houses will rise in La Crescenta—each for a buddie. Five lives will be made comfortable. Five buddies will be equipped to come along, war scathed, but as happy—as THEY can be.

Hey, Glendale—look—your wounded buddies are looking at you—and we want to know.

They came through—for you—
And you—?

GEORGE E. CLAYTON ELECTED HEAD OF AUTO DEALERS

New Automobile Distributors' Organization Elects Officers

At a meeting of the Glendale Auto Dealers association, held at noon today at the Glen Inn, Geo. E. Clayton was elected president of the association. Other officers were elected as follows: Steven Packer, vice president; George T. Smith, treasurer, and M. B. Towman, secretary.

A committee was appointed to go over the by-laws of the Pasadena and Los Angeles auto dealers associations and will make recommendations for the drafting of a set of by-laws for the local organization at the next meeting, to be called by President Clayton. This meeting will probably be called next Tuesday at the Glen Inn. The committee is composed of Max Green, George T. Smith and M. B. Towman.

The directors present at the meeting today were George E. Clayton, Harry E. White, George T. Smith, Steve Packer, William Tanner, Max Green and M. B. Towman. Mr. French, of the firm of Bartlett & French, was out of the city.

REEVES DECLARES EVERINGTON WON

That Col. James W. Everington former chief of police of Los Angeles, has been honored by his dismissal from the department, is the opinion of City Manager W. H. Reeves, who is a member, with Col. Everington, in the Glendale post of the American Legion. Mr. Reeves said:

"Commercialized vice in Los Angeles seems to have triumphed for the moment in getting rid of Col. Everington, who is an able, courageous and honorable man. Col. Everington has the sincere respect of all his comrades in the Glendale post of the American Legion for the soldierly way in which he battled for right and decency while he held his position as head of the Los Angeles police department."

HI-Y DEPUTATION TO VISIT CHINO

The Glendale Hi-Y deputation team will go to the California Junior Republic at Chino on Sunday, where they will conduct the religious services of the day. The team is composed of Maynard Toll, Dick Fisher, Dale Wood, George Jordan and Herbert Bruck. They will be accompanied by the "Y" secretary, Rex Kelley.

The California Junior Republic is a state institution composed of high school age boys who do all the labor connected with the running of their large plant, and who have their own form of republican government.

The Hi-Y will be their guests for the day, arriving for the morning service, which will be followed by dinner and an inspection of the republic.

HI LOSES GAME TO ALHAMBRA SCHOOL

The baseball team of the Glendale high school lost the game yesterday to the team from Alhambra high, by a score of 8 to 7, after leading on the score board until the eighth inning, when four errors by Glendale let in five runs for the visitors.

During the eighth and ninth innings the visitors slipped seven runs over on the local team and when the game ended there were two Glendale runners on the bases.

HUMAN SIDE OF EXODUS AT THORNYCROFT TOLD IN STORY OF SOLDIERS FIVE

Dreamed of Homes at La Crescenta, Government Order Comes After They Purchased Lots and One Pioneers Way With Wife and Child

TELL STORY OF GREAT DISAPPOINTMENT

Fifteen Hundred Dollars Will Build Them the Little Homes They Planned and Sympathy of Glendale Merchants Is Enlisted

Five little lots lying near the tracks of the railroad at La Crescenta are mute evidences of the collapsed dreams of five of the soldier boys of Thornycroft, who will turn their faces from Glendale, April 30, on army orders closing the government contract with that sanitarium.

On one of the little lots is a tent. Such a small, inefficient tent. But it is a home. That of Clarence Christenson, his wife and their child. They are there. He at Thornycroft. Under the government orders he must face away from Glendale. They will remain. It is their only home, with its dirt floor, its exposure.

Christenson was the pioneer of the comrades five of Thornycroft.

There was Tom Coffey, who served eleven months with the 311th Field Remount, two months with the army of occupation on the Rhine. He was single.

Then, Fred E. Strombom, first sergeant company A, 54th ammunition train, who went across on May 6, 1917, and stayed until September 22, 1919, in the army; nine months in the forces abroad. Gassed. He has a wife. And there was a baby born today in his home in Glendale.

And Johnny Watrous, first class private, 20th field artillery, out of San Antonio, fifteen months in the service, victim of camp flu.

Jack Lichtig, who was stricken at Camp Lewis when in the 39th field artillery, battery F, and was shifted from the 91st to the 13th division, then marked by the flu for life.

Months ago the soldiers five planned to live in the open, in homes of their own on the $80 per month the government provides.

They went to La Crescenta. Three of the boys selected lots to cost $300 each, one a lot at $350 and one at $650. They made their first payments. The rest was only $5 and $10 per month. After the lots were paid for they planned little frame houses, paid for after months of savings, perhaps in a year or two.

Christenson made the first break. He got his tent, a home for Mrs. Christenson and their child. The storms came and the floods swept the district. They stayed through it, hoping to save money some way for the shack to which he might come home.

Days off out of the sanitariums the soldiers five gathered there and talked it all over.

Then came the order of the government, first peremptory to get out and into government hospitals within two days. The appeal of the Glendale Daily Press and the reprieve of two weeks.

The soldiers five brought their dreams to the Glendale Daily Press. Not in appeal, for they had no hope that the Press would find a way to secure approximately $1000 or $1500 necessary to make the dreams of the soldiers five come true. But they turned to the Press as the boys of Thornycroft always do.

They were told to obey orders, take up their lives at Sawtelle, and the Glendale Daily Press went into action.

A few of the merchants were interviewed yesterday. More will be consulted today. Others on Monday.

By Thursday, with the assistance of the merchants and the citizens of Glendale, the Press is confident that it will have started the materialization of the dreams of the soldiers five, of life in the open, in comfortable little homes in La Crescenta, monuments to the spirit of patriotism and loyalty of Glendale.

HIGH ORATORS WIN DEBATE ON LAW AGAINST STRIKE

Big Audience Hears Glendale Uphold Right of Labor to Act

The big audience which gathered at Glendale High, Friday night, had the pleasure of hearing an excellent debate on the merits and defects of the Court of Industrial Relations of the state of Kansas, and whether California should adopt some such method to settle capital-labor disputes. It also had the pleasure of hearing the great spontaneous shout of joy which went up when announcement was made of the decision of the judges which gave the honors of the evening to the Glendale representatives by a score of 199 to 182 for San Diego.

Before returns were announced Mr. Noble, debating manager for San Diego, thanked the Glendalians for their kind reception and expressed the hope that San Diego would have opportunity to reciprocate.

Miss Lucy Strother, president of the student body, made a charming presiding officer and introduced the speakers, San Diego High being represented by Jordan Barraclough and Stanley Miller, who urged the affirmative side of the question, Kathleen Campbell and Victor Colburn representing Glendale High with the negative side. The judges were Dr. Lloyd S. Reeks and Attorneys Clifford E. Hughes and Clarence V. Eberhard of Los Angeles.

A conspicuous figure in the evening's entertainment was the yell leader, Don Cameron under whose inspiring direction there were yells for Glendale, for San Diego and for the local team, and a fascinating "locomotive yell" warmly applauded by amused parents present. After that there were yells for each speaker as introduced, including Mr. Noble, and the young ladies entertained during the wait for the judges' decision, Dorothy Peart who sang "Smilin' Through" and "A Gypsy Love Song," and Doris Packer who recited the "Soliloquy of a Baby."

Jordan Barraclough, first affirmative speaker, referred to the great coal strike, now three weeks' old in which the situation is becoming acute not for the coal industry, but for other industries affected from which a state of general unemployment may ensue. All parties to the dispute will be the losers, he declared, the public losing millions by reason of the general breakdown in business. The time was when all disputes were settled by force, but

Mayor's Proclamation Starts Clean-up Monday

To the People of Glendale:

Whereas, next week has been suggested as "Clean-up Week" by the civics committee of the Chamber of Commerce and endorsed by the city council, it gives me pleasure to bring this movement to the attention of residents of Glendale.

This community is known for its cleanliness, and that fact brings many hundreds of families here annually. Designating one special week as "Clean-up Week" does not mean that the city is particularly dirty. It merely means that a co-operative effort should be made during this period to make it still cleaner.

Civic pride demands that every property owner should make a careful examination of his premises immediately to ascertain if its appearance can be improved by fulfilling the intention of this campaign. A little paint and work with rake and hoe does a lot of good and improves both the value and appearance of residential and business property.

Arrangements have been made for the city to make a number of extra collections of rubbish in the residential district. The civics committee of the Chamber of Commerce is directing the work and will, no doubt, announce plans for the community event.

Cleanliness is next to Godliness and I am sure that Glendale will not neglect "Clean-up Week."

SPENCER ROBINSON,
Mayor of the City of Glendale.

EAGLE ROCK ACTIVITIES

ROACH PURCHASES ESTATE

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Roach have purchased the four-acre estate of Amos Davis, on the hillside at 841 South College View avenue, and will divide it into lots from each of which a magnificent view will be obtained. They are building a $4000 house at 248 East Sycamore avenue, and work is being rushed on their four new stores at the corner of Castle and Myrtle avenues.

J. P. Miller, who has been absent for some time, superintending the work on his ranch at Santa Marguerita, where oil has been developed, is spending Easter week with his wife at their Eagle Rock home, 212 East Park avenue.

KING TRADES HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene King have traded their attractive hillside home at 210 Floristan avenue for the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Sherlock, at 1472 West 37th street, Los Angeles, and each family has taken possession of the new quarters. Mrs. Sherlock will identify herself with the Episcopalians in Eagle Rock.

Mrs. Blonda Banks Colborn of 212 North Acacia avenue, a dramatic reader and instructor of note, read Henry Vandyke's grand poem, "God of the Open Air," at the sunrise Easter service on Mt. Michael, in Riverside county.

PLAYERS OF EAGLE ROCK TO PRESENT COMEDY

"What Happen to Jones" Scheduled for School Auditorium

The Eagle Rock Community Players will come before the public for the second time this season on Friday and Saturday nights of this week, when they will present the comedy, "What Happened to Jones," by George H. Broadhurst, in the Central schol auditorium at 8 o'clock. The experienced Pasadena dramatist, Mrs. Elgie Lowery Fischer, will be the director. Tickets are on sale at the Eagle Rock Dry Goods store, and at the door after 7 o'clock on the nights of the performance.

The cast of characters, most of whom have previously shown their histrinoic talent on this stage, is headed by Harold Ide Cruzan, who plays the title role, and includes Mildred Lerchen, Ellen Galpin, Elizabeth H. Morrison, Dorothy M. Algy, Lois Garrett, Veta Gregory, C. H. Griffin, Walter H. Dorance, Joseph J. Morgan, Arthur Howard and Douglas Lawton. Such a strong cast as this and the cleverness of the comedy assure a delightful evening for the audience, which should crowd the house in appreciation of so worthy an exhibition of the dramatic talent existing in the community and the painstaking efforts of the officers of the Players association in staging such an excellent production.

NEW PLANING MILL AT EAGLE ROCK

Shirley Allen Lumber Co. Announces Near Completion of Plant

The new and completely equipped mill of the Shirley-Allen Lumber company, located just west of Park on Central, Eagle Rock, has just been completed and is now ready to take care of all work along the millwork line that can possibly be needed by the people of Eagle Rock and vicinity. Melvin Ross, manager of this lumber company, is an old-time lumber man and knows his business from one end to the other. He does not experiment in his line of work—every time he is asked for his opinion on anything in the lumber line he gives an expert reply.

The completely equipped sash and door department, which is equipped to do efficient and rapid work, is under the management of Harry Reed, who has had years of experience in this work. He is able to turn out anything along the sash and door line in short order, and at a price that will be very acceptable to the builder.

It is a pleasure for this firm to bid on any bill of lumber. No bill is too small and none is too large. The boys in this yard are a bunch of live wires and the service they are rendering will prove a revelation to the builder.

You can flatter a man by asking his advice.

MOVING PICTURE ENTERTAINMENT AT WEST END

Improvement Association Enjoy Exhibit of California Scenery

The West End Eagle Rock Improvement association had their second monthly meeting last Friday afternoon, in the West schoolhouse. and enjoyed an exhibition of California scenery in moving pictures on the screen, manipulated by P. H. Ducker, the successful candidate for the vacant position of school trustee, at the recent election. The pictures were produced by the Edison company. The association was organized a month ago with 41 paid memberships and at this meeting an active membership drive was decided upon.

Eagle Rock Churches

The second anniversary of the dedication of the fine brick Presbyterian church, at the corner of Central and East Adams avenues, will be celebrated with appropriate exercises Sunday morning, and the newly elected elders, trustees and deacons will be installed in office and ordained. The intermediate and senior Christian Endeavorers will meet at 6:15. A musical service, taking up the most famous hymn writers, under the caption of "Songs from Prison Cells," will be given in the evening, beginning at 7:30. A surprise Easter gift of a church accousticon was received last Sunday from Mr. and Mrs. Sherman of Chicago, as a memorial for Mrs. H. H. Hill, who was the mother of Mrs. Sherman. Another addition to the church possessions is a large electric cross which has been erected on the top of the tower. It was lighted for the first time on the night of Good Friday and much admired by residents of that part of the city. The intention is to illuminate it every evening that meetings are going on in the church.

Rev. E. Morgan Isaac, pastor of the Congregational church, has chosen "The Path of the Just" for the theme of his sermon in the morning. He will speak of great lives that were marked by unselfishness of purpose and point out that people influence the world according to the way they live, for in life the road traveled is made up of motives, actions, thoughts, ideas and emotions, through which may rise to the level of the path of the just. The choir, directed by Mrs. Paul Elderkin, has been requested to repeat the beautiful cantata, "The Risen King," which was sung on Easter morning, and will give it Sunday evening at 7:30. It will be followed by a short lecture, the subject not announced. Rev. Isaac always selects timely topics.

Dr. John Hedley's subject Sunday morning in the Methodist church will be "Vision and Service," preceded by the usual ten-minute talk to the children. On this occasion he will discuss "Sunbeams." In the evening he will tell "What We Owe to Thomas," having in mind the doubters who are everywhere present.

Regular meetings at the usual hours, with an address by the rector, Rev. Robert Renison, in the evening.

Catholic and Christian Science services as usual.

INSPECTOR GEORGE OF NEW HAVEN HERE

Mr. Edgar M. George, assistant United States inspector, New Haven, Conn., came over Sunday from San Bernardino to visit his sister-in-law, Mrs. R. C. Carley, 214 South Douglas avenue. Mr. George will be stationed at San Bernardino until the latter part of June and will be the week-end visitor at the Carley home while here.

ISLAM CONSIDERED

"Islam," was the subject considered at the meeting of the Missionary society of the Congregational church Thursday afternoon at 2:30. Mrs. C. W. Young, president of the society, read the story, "A Lady of the Stars." There was a musical program and tea was served.

NEW CIVIC CLUB AT EAGLE ROCK

Meets at East End School House on Monday Next

The new civic club organized at a meeting held last month in the East End schoolhouse, which was attended by more than 100 men and women of that part of Eagle Rock valley, will meet again next Monday evening at the same place. The Constitution and by-laws which have been drawn up will be reported for approval, members will be taken in, and permanent officers elected. A large attendance of persons interested is urged.

KOETHEN LEAVES ON SAD JOURNEY

W. L. Koethen of 218 Grandview avenue, left for Washington last week to attend the funeral of his son, Theodore C. Koethen, for whom the Eagle Rock post of the American Legion was named. Young Koethen was a member of Company E, 117th Engineers, which left Los Angeles for foreign service in 1917. He died in a French hospital on July 15, 1918, and his body has just been returned to this country. Interment was made in the National cemetery at Arlington, Va., the Washington chapter of the Rainbow division taking charge of the service. In the handsome brick Presbyterian church of Eagle Rock there is a memorial window dedicated to Theodore C. Koethen, who sang in the choir and was active in Christian Endeavor and other work of the church.

LIBRARY BENEFIT CONCERT THURSDAY

On Thursday evening of this week Mrs. Aida Ludlow of the Thursday Morning Music club, a teacher of piano and singing, will give a musicale in the Congregational church, assisted by her little son, Bradley; Miss Esther Gleiss, violinist; Virgil Drengberg, viola, and Mrs. Constance Braasch, accompanist. There is no admission fee, but a silver offering will be taken and contributed to the public library to assist in the enlargement of its music section.

EAGLE ROCK PERSONALS

Mrs. Gus Schwemer, who resides on North Castle avenue, has gone to New York and from there will sail for Germany on May 2. After visiting relatives and friends in that country for several months she will go to Switzerland.

Dr. Mary LeClere, the osteopatist, has taken the state examination in medicine and surgery and received her physician's and surgeon's license. She is a daughter of Rev. and Mrs. George F. LeClere of Rowland avenue and has an office in the Masonic building.

Mrs. S. T. Bryan of West Myrtle avenue and Mrs. Robert Hardman of East Sycamore avenue, are enjoying a visit during Easter vacation from their niece, Miss Beryl Jeter, who teaches music in the Los Angeles High School.

New arrivals from Los Angeles are Mr. and Mrs. Van Lee Hood, who have purchased the house at 421 South Central avenue. Mr. Hood is an attorney and has an office in Los Angeles. Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Behlmer who sold the house, will remove with her family to Pasadena. They have been living at 315 South Central avenue, which will be occupied by Mr. Walters, bookkeeper for the Shirley-Allen Lumber company, and his wife.

Newton Johnson, Clay Long, Robert Hardman, and Hubert Miller were taken to Azusa early last week and from that point began a hike to Crystal lake, where they had arranged to camp during their Easter vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Sperow have sold their house at 153 Linden way and will build a six-room bungalow on North Peyton avenue.

Purely Personal

Mrs. E. E. Tamplin of 325 North Howard street, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Reeves and baby boy of England now making their home here, and Earl Hale also of Glendale, motored to Antelope Valley on Thursday and back through Bouquet Canyon. They report a very pleasant trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Libernash from Claremont spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Smith of 312 North Kenwood street.

Mrs. C. E.. Thompson of 121½ South Louise street left Friday for a three-day trip to San Diego with friends from Hollywood.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Coon of 220 North Orange stteet motored to Santa Barbara recently where they spent three days. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carpenter from Rhode Island who have been wintering in Pasadena.

Mrs. M. Dodge of 115 South Verdugo road has sold her property there to Dr. and Mrs. P. O. Lucas who have been living temporarily at La Crescenta. Mrs. Dodge has just completed a new five-room bungalow at 208 North Cedar street and will move in next week.

James Berry of 115 South Verdugo road, who is 85 years of age broke his arm on March 4th but is getting along very nicely.

Mrs. G. W. Conrad, Jr., from Klamath Falls, Oregon, is visiting her mother, Mrs. J. H. Wise of 212 West Lomita avenue.

Mrs. W. N. McCurdy of 113 South Cedar street has been ill for the past week with a severe attach of tonsilitis.

Mrs. William Blakemore of 356 West Milford street spent last week with her mother at Pomona.

Mr. and Mrs. George McDill of 1451 East Wilson avenue spent two days this week at Long Beach.

Miss Frances Stewart from San Bernardino spent Friday with Mrs. E. L. Walker of 1233 East Colorado street. Miss Stewart is visiting with Mrs. L. A. Hutchins at Eagle Rock.

Mrs. E. L. Young of 325 West Milford street will leave Monday for Berkeley where she will spend two weeks with her sister, Mrs. D. Arthur Edward, formerly Miss Sadler of Glendale.

Rev. A. B. Smart, who had the misfortune to fall and injure his knee several weeks ago, is slowly recuperating and is able to hobble about the house a little with the aid of crutches.

W. D. Root of Olive street was called to Wasco, Ore., last Tuesday by the death of his father. Just when he will be home his relatives cannot say, as he may find it necessary to remain with his mother for a time.

Mrs. C. M. Sparr of 234 South Jackson street and son, William Sparr of Los Angeles, took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Biglow of Hollywood, who are visiting here from Cleveland.

Mrs. Elizabeth Snyder of 234 South Jackson street will spend Sunday at Laguna Beach with friends from Indiana.

Rev. Henry Goodsell of 125 West Palmer is having the pleasure of entertaining his son, Rev. C. Goodsell, who has come from Denver, Colo., and who is delighted with Southern California.

E. R. Ripley of the firm of Smith-Babcock-Hamilton, realtors, 204 East Broadway, spent the greater part of the week in the Paso Robles section and is greatly enthused over that district. His firm his recently taken over the selling agency for Paso Robles land, the largest almond district in the world. Prices are much lower than in any other section and production much larger.

R. F. Ledger of Paso Robles, next-door neighbor of Paderewski, is down here, the guest of Smith-Babcock Hamilton, in the interest of various sales pending in Paso Robles land.

A Year Ago Today

From Glendale Daily Press of April 22, 1921

The students of the Glendale high school are enjoying Jinks Day today. This is an annual affair looked forward to with great eagerness by the student body, as it means a day of carnival.

Four more men enlisted in the Glendale company of the national guard at its drill last night on the high school grounds. Announcement was made at this time that government uniforms and equipment for the men had arrived.

Glendale was represented by 70 Knights Templar and their ladies at Long Beach today when the grand commandery of the state of California opened its session.

A petition for a more adequate water supply on West Doran street was presented to the city trustees last night at their weekly session.

IRRIGATION LABORATORY

Probably the most complete irrigation field laboratory in the west will soon be in operation at the University of California Farm at Davis. The laboratory will be equipped to test and demonstrate practically all of the standard irrigation equipment and methods.

Some people attract attention by thinking out loud, but the jackass does that.

HIGH ORATORS WIN DEBATE ON LAW

as this became intolerable to advancing civilization, courts were established to weigh evidence and arbitrate and he argued there was no reason why the benefits of court adjudication should not be applied to industrial relations. He then described the workings of the industrial court established in Kansas in 1920 under Governor Allen, composed of three members appointed for three years at a salary of $5000 annually, with power to settle all disputes arising in industries essential to the public welfare, such as mining, the manufacturing of food, clothing, electric power, and transportation.

Under the law creating the court, the calling of a strike was made a penal offense punishable by $5000 fine and imprisonment for two years. Either party to the dispute has the right to invoke the offices of the court and if they refuse to abide by the decision of the court, the state has the right to take over the industry and operate it for both parties until an agreement is reached.

He defined the weapons used in industrial warfare as four—the black-list, boycot, lockout and strike. He claimed that the functioning of the court tended to do away with black-listing by employers to terrorize employes and to do away with the boycot to terrorize the employer. It forbids the lockout and strike and therefore tends to stabilize industry. He claimed the court had successfully carried out its mission.

Miss Campbell, first speaker on the negative, declared the Kansas industrial court was but an old thing in a new disguise, a revival of the old hampering restrictions imposed upon labor in England until it threw off the shackles and became free. No such court, she contended, could render a real decision until a codification of the rights of capital and labor had been made, that without such codification it was merely a board of arbitration. She held it to be a violator of economic laws in its interference with the right of contract, bringing about involuntary serviture by compelling a man to work against his will and by invading the right of private property guaranteed by the constitution. She insisted that it introduce paternalism and by investing three men with so much power, strikes at the fundamental principles of our government.

The supporting speakers, Stanley Miller for the affirmative and Victor Colburn for the negative, elaborated these arguments and offered evidence as to the success or failure of the court in operation. This evidence conflicted, Mr. Colburn asserting that statistics showed friction in industry which had led to an increase in strikes averaging 38 per month or 400 percent increase, while figures quoted by Mr. Miller from the Department of Labor at Washington asserted the strikee had been cut down to 14 during the year. The success or failure of the court was therefore left in doubt. Mr. Miller defended the court for not intervening in the present strike on the ground that Kansas has an abundant supply of coal and therefore the public welfare is not affected. He cited many cases where quick settlement had been effected and insisted that though not perfect it was a step in the right direction which California could well afford to adopt.

The Glendale speakers were a decided credit to the school and acquitted themselves with honor. Miss Campbell who laid the foundation of the argument is a ready, fluent debater, speaking with earnestness and conviction that drive her points home as a personal matter in which she is deeply concerned. She was loyally supported by Mr. Colburn.

The Hollywood contest in which Glendale High was represented by Helen Sherwood and Harold Majors, proved to be a practice debate and no decision was rendered.

ULTIMATUM GIVEN ON BRAND TRACKS

nor be included in the itemized cost of the job.

Mr. Rhoades told Mr. Pontius of the railway corporation that it was evident that he (Pontius) did not understand the attitude of the people of Glendale toward the corporation he represented. He intimated that the people were in a mood that would not stand for a proposition such as the one being offered by the corporation.

After figuring for three hours and arguing over the cost of the job as submitted by the Pacific Electric and the cost as estimated by the city officials, Councilman Davis delivered the ultimatum that the city would allow the Pacific Electric $10,000 as this municipality's share in the expense of lowering the tracks. He also said that the proposition would have to be either accepted or rejected by Wednesday.

sale that is being held today at McBain's for this fund.

Comrade Dwight Stephenson read a pamphlet that is being distributed by the Farmers' and Merchants' bank of Los Angeles condemning the bonus or adjusted compensation bill. A committee was appointed and instructed to draft an open letter to the bank condemning that institution not only for the letter but for the language used.

Owen Emory was appointed to represent the Glendale post of the Legion at the flag pole raising of the Boy Scouts in Verdugo Woodlands this afternoon.

Comrade Jones, chairman of the entertainment committee, resigned his post on the committee, giving as his reason the press of outside business that is making it impossible for him to act on the committee. Comrade Sid Simons was appointed to fill the vacancy. The entertainment committee announced that a banquet and entertainment is being planned for the future that will be similar to the one given recently at the Chamber of Commerce. Several prominent people will be invited to attend the banquet and to speak after dinner.

Next week the Legion will hold an initiation. Refreshments will be served. The refreshment committee for this meeting was chosen in a novel manner. Members whose names ended with the sound of O were appointed. The result was Comrades Delgardo, Serro, Ed Moniot and Julius Moniot will supply the "eats." City Manager Reeves, who is also a member of the Glendale post, has been invited to talk at this meeting and will give the comrades a few pointers on the sewer problem that is facing the city at present.

Social Notes

DRAMA SECTION IS ENTERTAINED

Members of the Drama section of the Tuesday Afternoon club were pleasantly entertained Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles A. Parker on North Orange street.

John Drinkwater's play, "Mary Stuart," was read and discussed, and the curator of the section, Mrs. R. E. Chase, read a new and very modern satire, "Can't Say No." About 25 were present and at the close of the program refreshments of strawberries and ice cream, cake and coffee were served by the hostess,

The next meeting of the section will be held the first Friday in May at the home of Mrs. Albert Pearce who will be assisted by Mrs. L. C. Childers.

Friday morning members met at the home of Mrs. Charles Temple to rehearse the play which the section is to give on Reciprocity Day, the latter part of May. The drama is entitled, "Every Youth" and has a large cast which will take in most of the members of the section, who are Mesdames F. G. Abbey, W. L. Andrews, J. R. Bentley, A. E. Bode, Ray Calvin, Colin Cable, Alma Gibbs, Max Green, A. M. Hunt, Roy Kent, Mabel Ocker, W. F. Nash, Sr., W. F. Nash, Jr., L. G. Sherman, R. K. Snow, Charles H. Temple, C. D. Thom, H. C. Wilcox, Andrew Findlay, R. E. Chase, Bert Woodrow, W. H. Verity, B. L. Cline, Albert Pearce, M. C. Barker, Harry Lockwood, Charles A. Parker, Charles Meadows, B. J. Newcomb, John Dunn, A. L. Bryant, Lilian Dow, Warren Roberts, L. C. Childers, Jesse Joseph.

MRS. SISLEY GIVES DELIGHTFUL LUNCHEON

Mrs. Arthur S. Sisley of 630 East Maple avenue entertained Friday with a delightful luncheon and social afternoon.

Pansies centered the luncheon table where covers were laid for Mrs. Grover Adams, Mrs. M. Goode, Miss Florence Goode and Mrs. Arthur S. Sisley.

EVERINGTON OF GLENDAL ETELLS SIDE TO PRESS

Col. James W. Everington, former chief of police of Los Angeles, said yesterday to a representative of the Press:

"The proposition is this: The mayor was right in dismissing me from the department if what I am quoted as having said is correct—but I did not say those things.

"The commissioners did not back me up after they had individually admitted to me that the officers dismissed by me had not obeyed my orders. One of the officers dismissed by me and reinstated by the commissioners after the hearing on Thursday admitted to me in a conference yesterday just previous to my receiving my dismissal from the department that he had not carried out my orders. He said that he did not carry them out because he did not think that they were practical at this time. That is what I fired him for."

FINE PROGRAM AT PACIFIC AVE. CHURCH

Twenty New Members Are Introduced Into Work of Methodists

A delightful program and social evening was enjoyed at the Pacific Avenue Methodist church Friday evening when a reception was given to honor new members. About 65 members and attendants on the church were present including 20 guests of honor who have recently united with the church.

Following the program these guests were placed in line and members of the church to the strains of a stirring march played by Miss Gertrude Champlain, marched to the group and bade them welcome, in turn.

The program included two piano selections by Miss Gertrude Champlain, viz: "Waltz Mistique" (Bach) and "Mountain Stream" (Smith). Miss Champlain also served as accompanist for Mrs. Mabel Capell who sang "The Star" (Loomis), "Mammy's Song" (Porter), "I'll Forget" (Burns), "The Birthday" (Rossetti) and, by special request, "Annie Luarie." Two vocal numbers were given by Mrs. Waggoner, with her sister, Mrs. Beaman at the piano.

The address of welcome was made by the pastor, Rev. Harley G. Preston, and other addresses were made by representatives of various departments of the church as follows: Sunday school, Mr. Horn, assistant superintendent; the Brotherhood, President Martin; Ladies' Aid, Mrs. Ogden, president; Epworth League, Miss Vivian Hewitt; Choir and Board of Trustees, Geo. H. Moore.

An excellent and fitting response on behalf of new members was made by Donald McGill.

Following the program and reception, refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. The affair took place in the social hall of the church which had been beautifully decorated with roses, bridal wreath and greenery.

CHAPTER B. A. OF P. E. O. PROGRAM

The program provided for "Guest Day" of Chapter B. A., of the P. E. O., which was entertained by Mrs. A. S. Chase of 400 Riverdale Drive, was unusual and delighted the 50 members and friends who participated.

It was also "old times day" and members came garbed in old fashioned dresses, some of the 50 years old. The afternoon's pleasures included an exhibit of old fashioned things—combs, samplers, pictures, even a spinning wheel.

For the guessing contest which featured the program each lady was askedd to bring an old-time photograph of herself and the guest who identified the largest number—Mrs. Eva Cunningham—received as a prize an old-fashioned nosegay.

Mrs. Ripley of Minneapolis, played upon the piano a selection that she had played at a recital 20 years ago, and responded to an encore.

Mrs. Charles H. Toll read a most interesting paper giving the history of dress; Mrs. Edith Arnold sang a group of old-fashioned songs.

Mrs. Chase's home was beautifully decorated with wistaria and Cherokee roses, and at the conclusion of the program refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee were served by the hostess.

PYTHIAN SISTERS ATTEND MEETING

Ten members of La Halla temple, Pythian Sisters of this city, attended the Pythian convention held in Santa Monica Friday afternoon and evening, viz: Sisters Doose, St. Clair, Framm, Haynes, Grisman, Marek, Willetts, Wilbur, Anderson, and Jolliff.

Reports were submitted for all the different castles represented, and the work of the order was exemplified by various temples. The degree staff of Purity Temple, Los Angeles, put on initiation work and the past Chief Team gave a fancy drill. There was also a musical and miscellaneous program of entertainment.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH JUNIORS' SUPPER

The Junior Endeavrs of Central Christian church gave a supper and social evening Friday night in the church bungalow. This affair was the result of a boat contest held between two sides, one being headed by Myron Cole whose side won, and the other by Ruth Mercer.

The dinner tables were beautiful in their pink and white decoration and there were favors for each guest, numbering about 36 in all. One table was for the mothers of the juniors.

After the dinner had been served each guest was requested to do a stunt and there were judges to see who had the best one. They decided on Helen Smith and her brother who received first prize, and Ruth Mercer and Dorothy Jodon tied for second prize. The evening was an enjoyable one and Miss Burford, their leader, had it in charge.

NEW SOILS BULLETIN

"The Silt Loam Soils of Eastern Washington and Their Management" is the title of a new bulletin just off the press of the State College of Washington. Prof. F. J. Sievers, head of the soils department, and H. F. Holtz, of the soils division of the experiment station, are the authors.

Soil tillage, and the utilization of straw and manure on silt loam soils of Eastern Washington receiving more than 15 inches of precipitation per annum, are discussed. The conclusions pertaining to conditions of cropping and the growing of legumes apply only to areas receiving more than 18 inches of precipitation.

There are 25 illustrations in the bulletin, which is the result of experiments covering a series of years. These are some of the conclusions of the authors:

During 39 years of cropping 22.1 per cent of the nitrogen and 34.5 per cent of the organic matter has been lost from the soil.

Legume crops tend to maintain the soil nitrogen and organic matter.

Alfalfa, red clover and sweet clover, peas and vetch are legumes that can be grown successfully.

Lodging and "burning" of winter wheat can be controlled in part by a lighter rate of seeding.

The rate of seeding winter grain should be influenced by the nitrate content of the soil and the time available for tilling, high nitrate content and early seeding requiring a lesser rate.

Corn or any other inter-tilled crop when substituted for summer fallow does not materially reduce the yield of the succeeding grain crop.

Summer fallow is unnecessary where the annual rainfall is 18 inches or more, provided legumes or intertilled crops are grown in rotation.

The most effective summer fallow tillage is that which keeps the highest amount of moisture in the surface foot of soil for the greatest length of time during the summer fallow year.

No continuous cropping system can be recommended for that portion of the area where the annual precipitation is less than 18 inches.

HOME FURNITURE FACTORY WINS APPRECIATION

Russell-Pierce Company Already Enlarging Floor Space

The work of enlarging the floor space and otherwise improving its establishment is just being completed by the Russell-Pierce Furniture company, 1529 South San Fernando road. The improvements that have been made by this concern during the past few weeks have made this furniture manufacturing concern one of the leading in this section of the country.

In addition to enlarging the floor space by a thousand or so square feet this company has installed a large quantity of furniture making machinery, this being of the very latest design. Several thousand dollars alone was spent for this machinery and everything has been added that would result in economy in both time and money.

The most notable improvement efected is in the display department. Several hundred feet of floor space has been added to this department, and now this establishment resembles the display department of one of the largest metropolitan furniture establishments. This department is one of the most attractive and elaborate suburban furniture display rooms in Southern California.

"The improvement work is an absolute necessity," said L. W. Russell, one of the proprietors of this firm. "It comes as a direct result of the phenominal growth of our business, and is right along with the ideas for our business. We are now able to carry out our desire to give the people of the San Fernando valley a furniture service second to none. It has been our motto for many years to please everyone and we feel that the liberal support we have been receiving comes as a direct result of this endeavor."

ROY GARDNER IS LURID SHOW AT T. D. & L.

Bandit and Anita Stewart "Mad Bargain" Today 'Lady Friends' Sunday

The Roy Gardner bandit pictures —a series of special films reproducing the incidents and happenings which led up to and followed the escape and final re-capture of this much talked of highwayman—now showing at the T. D. & L. theatre, afford an interesting and personal, if not quite sensational, film. These Roy Gardner pictures are offered as a novelty in addition to the Anita Stewart picture, "Her Mad Bargain."

There are many distinct and interesting types in "Her Mad Bargain." From the stellar role in its most sparkling period down to the lower social strata where the star is compelled to battle for existence with the elements that stud the seamy side of life, the people that figure in Miss Stewart's struggle are all drawn from everyday life. The characters in this picture are so truly portrayed that they would fit perfectly into the big problems featured in every day's issue of the metropolitan dailies.

"My Lady Friends," a First National attraction which will open a two day run at the T. D. & L. theatre tomorrow, Sunday, is a swiftly moving farce, sprinkled with many hearty laughs and photographed in settings of rare beauty and variety.

It is the sort of entertainniment demanded at frequent intervals by the theatre-going public, but which cannot always be supplied because of the lack of suitable stories.

The production has been keyed up to a high rate of speed, and there is not a dull moment in the six reels. The fun starts with the opening scene and keeps up the pace without a falter until the end.

If the man who knows it all and is sufficient to himself would let it go at that he would have our deepest thanks.

NOTICE! Important Facts for You To Know and Think About

—When you buy a lot consider location, restrictions, lay of land and what's going to be built around the addition in which you put your money. After you buy it's too late to find out that the lots across the street from you are sold to a class who are going to build "things" they call houses which reduce the value of your investment.

—In Annandale Estates you have without question the location, with Club Golf Links on two sides (THE CLUB OWNS THE PROPERTY, TOO), then on the east you have highly restricted residence lots and on the north you'll find some of the most beautiful estates in CALIFORNIA. THIS IS ALL THERE NOW. NO TALK ABOUT WHAT'S GOING TO BE, BUT COME SEE FOR YOURSELF.

—I have sold to a class who know my property, too; yes, some of them have known it for fifteen to twenty years. Let me take you to see my purchasers. I am not asking the TOURISTS to buy my lots. I am using no bunk—I have the lots and they are priced right, too. Anyone can make money out of them, until I get enough sales to care for my finances, then look out, for prices will go up.

PUBLIC NOTICE

WHEREAS, a verified petition has been filed with the City Clerk of the City of Glendale by Mrs. Claude G. Putman and others, asking that the territory therein and hereinafter described, be established and set apart, by ordinance, as a First Class Residential District, which petition proposes that such territory or district be restricted from any and all industries, trades and businesses, and from the erection, construction, establishment, alteration or change of any and all buildings, structures, or improvements which are designated, intended to arranged to be occupied or used for any purpose other than a single Family Residence or Dwelling; and

WHEREAS, said petition is signed by the owners of more than fifty per cent of the frontage of the property of such proposed district; and

WHEREAS, said City Clerk has presented said petition to the City Council, and said Council has directed that notice of a public hearing upon said petition be given by the City Clerk as required by Section 2, Article XV, of the Charter of the City of Glendale, by one publication in the official newspaper of said City at least ten days before the time of hearing.

NOW, THEREFORE, pursuant to the direction of said City Council, and the requirements of Section 2, Article XV of said Charter,

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN

that at the hour of 7 o'clock P. M. of the 1st day of May, 1922, at the Council chamber in the City of Glendale, a public hearing will be given and had upon said petition and the matters and things therein contained, and more particularly to determine whether said territory or district therein and hereinafter described shall be established and set apart as a First Class Residential District as requested in said petition, at which time and place all persons having any objection or objections to the establishment of said First Class Residential District may appear before said City Council and present any objection or objections which they may have against the establishment of said proposed First Class Residential District.

A written protest or objection may be filed with the City Clerk by any person having an interest in any of the frontage of the property of such proposed district, or frontage of property which will be directly affected by the proposed district. Such protest or objection must be filed not later than the hour set for hearing. All protestants may appear before the Council at said hearing, either in person or by counsel, and be heard in support of their protests or objections.

The territory or district described in said petition, and which is proposed to be set apart as a First Class Residential District as aforesaid, is described as follows:

Beginning at the northeasterly corner of Lexington Drive, and Everett Street; thence northerly along the easterly line of Everett Street to its intersection with a line drawn one hundred fifty (150) feet westerly from and parallel to the westerly line of Glendale Avenue; thence northeasterly along said line so drawn to its intersection with the southerly line of Monterey Road; thence in a direct line across Monterey Road to a point in the northerly line thereof where same is intersected by a line drawn one hundred fifty (150) feet westerly from and parallel to the westerly line of Glendale Avenue; thence northeasterly along said line so drawn to a point one hundred fifty (150) feet northwesterly from the intersection of the westerly line of Glendale Avenue and the westerly line of Verdugo Road; thence in a direct line to said point of intersection last mentioned; thence southwesterly across Glendale Avenue to the intersection of the easterly line of Glendale Avenue with the westerly line of Verdugo Road; thence southerly along the westerly line of Verdugo Road to its intersection with a line drawn one hundred fifty (150) feet easterly from and parallel to the easterly line of Glendale Avenue; thence along said line so drawn southwesterly and southerly to its intersection with the northerly line of Monterey Road; thence southwesterly across Monterey Road to the intersection of the southerly line of Monterey Road with a line drawn one hundred fifty (150) feet from and parallel with the easterly line of Glendale Avenue; thence southwesterly along said line so drawn to its intersection with the northerly extension of the easterly line of Lot 4 of Leavitt Tract, as per map recorded in Book 14, page 4 of Maps, Records of Los Angeles County, California; thence southerly along said extension and along said easterly line of Lot 4 to the northerly line of Lexington Drive; thence westerly along the northerly line of Lexington Drive to the point of beginning.

The petition above referred to is on file in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Glendale, and is hereby referred to for further particulars.

This notice shall be published once in the Glendale Daily Press, the official newspaper of said City, at least ten days before the date of the hearing hereinabove mentioned.

Dated April 21, 1922.

ORDINANCE NO. 559

AN ORDINANCE CREATING FIRST CLASS RESIDENTIAL DISTRICT NO. 2 IN THE CITY OF GLENDALE, AND REGULATING THE PURPOSES FOR WHICH BUILDINGS, STRUCTURES OR PREMISES MAY BE ERECTED, CONSTRUCTED OR MAINTAINED THEREIN.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE:

SECTION 1. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation hereafter to maintain, carry on, establish, enlarge or extend any industry, trade or business of any kind or character whatsoever, within the First Class Residential District hereby created, and known and designated as "First Class Residential District No. 2."

SECTION 2. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to erect, construct, establish, alter or maintain, or cause or permit to be erected, constructed, established, altered or maintained, within the First Class Residential District hereby created, and known and designated as "First Class Residential District No. 2," any building or premises which shall be used, designed, intended or arranged to be occupied or used for any purpose other than a single family residence or dwelling, together with its usual accessories.

The term "Single Family Residence or Dwelling" shall not include more than two buildings located on the same lot or parcel of land, which shall be used, designed, intended or arranged to be occupied or used for any purpose other than a single family residence or dwelling, and shall not include a duplex house, apartment house, double bungalow, or bungalow court.

The term "Usual Accessories" shall not include any building or use not located on the same lot or parcel of land with the building, or use to which it is accessory, and shall not include any private garage containing space for more than four automobiles.

SECTION 3. That the First Class Residential District hereby created, shall be known as "First Class Residential District No. 2," and shall comprise all that portion of the City of Glendale, described as follows:

Beginning at the northwest corner of Lot 18, Houston's West Glendale Tract, as per map recorded in Book 12, page 37 of Maps, Records of Los Angeles County, California; thence easterly along the northerly lines of Lots 18 to 5 inclusive of said Houston's West Glendale Tract to the easterly line of said Lot 5; thence southerly along the easterly line of said Lot 5 to the northerly line of Milford Street; thence easterly along the northerly line of Milford Street to the westerly line of Columbus Avenue; thence southerly along the westerly line of Columbus Avenue to the southeasterly corner of Lot 72 of said Houston's West Glendale Tract; thence westerly along the southerly lines of Lots 72 to 55 inclusive of said Houston's West Glendale Tract to the easterly line of Pacific Avenue; thence northerly along the easterly line of Pacific Avenue to the point of beginning.

SECTION 4. Nothing in this ordinance contained shall be deemed or construed as repealing any ordinance of the City of Glendale, regulating the establishment or maintenance of businesses and industries within the Residential District of the City of Glendale, or any ordinance creating Residential Districts and regulating the purposes for which buildings, structures or premises may be erected, constructed or maintained, and prohibiting the establishment, or maintenance of businesses or industries.

SECTION 5. Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than $500.00, or by imprisonment in the City Jail or in the County Jail of Los Angeles County, for a period of not exceeding six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Each such person, firm or corporation shall be deemed guilty of a separate offense for every day during any portion of which any violation of any provision of this ordinance is committed, continued or permitted by such person, firm or corporation, and shall be punishable therefor as provided by this ordinance.

SECTION 6. The City Clerk shall certify the passage of this ordinance and cause the same to be published once in the Glendale Daily Press, the official newspaper of said City, and it shall take effect and be in force on the thirtieth day after its passage.

Passed by the Council of the City of Glendale on this 20th day of April, 1922.

SAFETY INSIGNIAS WIN REGARD OF AUTO FOLKS

Thousands of Motorists Sign Up to Get Green and White Stickers

Unusual interest is being taken in the safety campaign now being waged by the Auto Club of Southern California, according to a report just issued locally.

Thousands of motorists are signing pledges to drive safely, and in order to prove that they mean what they say they are mounting the green and white windshield stickers on their cars. Word received by the club's safety bureau from the east indicates that the system started here will be taken up nationally.

These stickers and pledges can be obtained at any club county office—have you applied for yours yet, Mr. Motorist? It is up to the drivers of automobiles themselves to cut down the appalling list of fatalities in the southern counties, say club officials, and to that end every driver is being given an opportunity to enlist in the movement now!

NEW OLDSMOBILE TAKES CLIMB FOR TEST

Masters School Street Hill With Eight Passengers on High

With eight passengers aboard a model 43 four-cylinder Oldsmobile accomplished the wonderful feat of climbing School street hill in La Canada, from Verdugo road to the mountains. This truly remarkable stunt took place yesterday afternoon, the little "four" covering itself with glory, for this is a climb that very few cars will make on high with only one passenger aboard.

Not satisfied with this the "whale of a car" started at the bottom of the hill, which is about a mile in length, with five passengers aboard. It fairly flew up the grade and when the top was reached it was making 22 miles an hour—and everything in high gear.

The fellow who has sent his car up School street hill realizes that it is "some climb." It is a case of a grade upon a grade. At the foot of the hill the grade is a fair one but as the car proceeds northward the driver realizes that the hill is becoming steeper. A few moments later it can be seen that the car is doing some real climbing, and before the top is reached the old bus simply has to "stick 'er toes in" to make the top. But in this try-out the Oldsmobile Four did things that were not expected of her. She acted like a real thoroughbred.

The accompanying illustration shows this machine carrying the party of eight up this very trying grade. Those in the car during this test were T. A. Aamoth, driving; Miss Pearl Pollock, also in the front seat. In the rear seat were Mrs. Leonard, Mrs. A. J. Cronice and Mrs. A. C. Sumner. Riding on the running boards were W. Robertson, S. J. Williams and a representative of the Glendale Press.

After the test J. C. Pollock of 208-10 West Broadway, local agent for the Oldsmobile, said:

"I knew mighty well that little Olds Four would show what she is made of on that hill. This is strictly a stock car, such as we have on our display floor right now. There isn't a better little car on the market.

DRIVING DON'TS FOR DRIVERS THAT ARE SAFE

Glendale Press Evolves Rules That Are Sure to Prevent Accidents

Rules and series of rules for the motorist have been devised, created and compiled in the past, and all of them has had for their object the safety to human life and property. From the number of automobile accidents that occur weekly it would seem that there are still a number of motorists who persists in violating anything and everything in the way of rules that have ever been brought forward. To some motorists comon sense in motor driving seems to be a minus quantity. They are constantly breaking rules and laws that have been enacted, and when the inevitable accident happens it is this fellow who is first to place the blame on "the other motorist."

But notwithstanding the sets of rules that have been published in the past The Glendale Press has a set of rules all its own that, if heeded, would practically eliminate the automobile accident — and would make the "death toll" a thing of the past. This list follows:

Never drive faster than the speed limit. Speeding is responsible for a large number of automobile accidents.

Never cut in and out of traffic.

Never cut to the left of a street car. You never know what is coming toward you on the opposite track, or whether someone is crossing the street, in front of the car, who may walk right into your path.

Never pass a standing street car taking on or discharging passengers.

Never drive on wet street car tracks. They may cause more skidding accidents than all other things combined.

Never try to pass another vehicle at street intersections.

Don't follow another car too closely. It may stop suddenly without giving you a signal. You cannot stop or get out of the way.

Never make a right hand turn from the middle of the street. Always approach as closely to the curb as posible.

Never cut corners when making a turn; go to the middle of the cross street and then make your turn.

Never try to blow children off the street with your horn. It ismply cannot be done.

LANDSCAPE GARDENING

"Because women often have more natural ability along artistic lines than men, and because the work is constructive rather than routine, landscape gardening appeals to women," said Prof. A. M. Doerner, in charge of landscape gardening work at the State College of Washington, and out through the state for the extension division.

"More and more they are taking it up as a profession," he continues. "There are now 23 students taking landscape gardening courses in the horticulture department of the college and about half of them are young women. Two of these are specializing in this work, taking the regular four-year course.

"The problems are practical, giving instruction in all phases of the work, such as home decoration, rural improvement, schoolyard design, and park work. Their instructor takes frequent trips over the state doing the extension work and the problems he encounters are brought back to the classroom and given as exercises, to make the work more interesting and instructive than it would be if the problems were all purely imaginary.

"As the students advance they are sent out to give lectures and do actual extension work, as far as possible independent of any aid from the instructor. Recently Miss Dorothy Anderson, an advanced student from Colville, gave a lecture on home improvement before a large audience of Pullman women, and afterwards answered questions not only on design, but also on cultural methods. The audience seemed much impressed with the practical nature of her advice.

"During spring vacation Miss Elizabeth LeVesconte, who comes from Yakima, was sent by the extension department to Zillah to advise regarding the improvement of a new park and automobile camp. While there she took photographs of the grounds, made a rough survey and took notes, all of which aided her in the preparation of the plan, which was made in the classroom under the supervision of the instructor."

The automobile owner who intends to do any repainting work before the summer months should see that all exposed oil holes are stuffed with felt or waste to prevent their being painted over and so choked. The latter condition will result in failure of oil to reach the bearings when the car is again being operated.

Leather upholstery should be wiped with a woolen cloth dipped in water, to which a few drops of ammonia has been added.

Use strips of cotton flannel when rolling up a tube. Sprinkle a talcum powder into a thick cloth bag before placing the roll therein.

ROAD SIGNS TO BE PROTECTED BY UNITED STATES

Combining With Auto Assn. Forestry Service to Arrest Mutilators

An agreement has been reached whereby the United States Forest service and the California State Automobile association will work jointing to prevent the construction and mutiliation of road direction signs and other direction markers. This will be atempted through an educational campaign in which publicity, lectures and exhibits will be used. Also, cases wherever it is found that these signs are maliciously destroyed prosecutions will take place.

To the end that signs may be preserved forest rangers will be instructed to protest the signs of this association and of the Automobile Club of Southern California. Both the government and the automobile associations of the state spend thousands of dollars annually in replacing mutilated signs. The cooperative agreement is expected to reduce these expenditures very greatly.

MAXWELL CARS SWARM STREETS

Glistening, New, Noiseless New Models Attract Great Admiration

The increase in the number of 1922 Maxwell automobiles that have made their appearance on the streets of Glendale during the past few weeks has been very noticeable. It has been but a few weeks since this very popular model made its appearance in this city, and since the arrival of the first car several dozen have been purchased by Glendale people through the agency of the Glendale Motor Car company, 246 South Brand boulevard. The prices of this year's Maxwell range from $1070 for the touring car to $1710 for the sedan.

"The new Maxwell organization has but one aim and purpose," said the manager of this agency this morning, "that is to make the new series fo the good Maxwell known as a sound value, by uniting low operating cost with unusual beauty and comfort."

If the carburetor catches fire, do not get excited or give way to panic. Shut off the gasoline at the tank and spin the engine with the self-starter. This draws some of the fire into the carburetor, where it will do no harm.

The varnish of a car is benefited and hardened by frequent washing in clear cool water, but is damaged if mud is allowed to dry on the body of a machine.

Poppies Call From the Hills With Glowing Golden Glory

The Glendale Daily Press Invites the Motoring Public to a Route Out Over the Most Wonderful Valley in the Southland

ALL NATURE IS IN TUNE WITH SPRING

Tank Up for a Drive Through the Riches of the Earth, Tickling the Kinks and Kicking the Jinx From Dull Care

California poppies, Sunday!

This is the California popy season. For the past few days the fields of San Fernando valley have been veritable blankets of gold and the motorist who does not take a trip out into the valley and gather some of these California state folwers is missing one of the treats of the year.

For this reason the Glendale Press trip this week will be out San Fernando valley way—out into one of the most wonderful valleys in this entire country. There probably is no time of the year when the "Fernando" valley is so attractive as it is at this time. The hills that border the valley on either side are covered with a coating of green and the shadings of these hillsides are nothing short of marvelous. On the different sections of the floor of the valley the various kinds of field crops are beginning to make their appearance. Everything in the truck line are to be seen as the motorist makes his way along the highways, all of which are practically as smooth as a table. There is a patch of several acres of lettuce here, a field of potatoes, just forcing their noses out of the ground, over yonder, and beans, cabbages, and in fact, vegetables of all kinds which this year promise to bring to the growers a good return on the time and effort expended.

The apricot groves of the valley are just now winding up their blooming season, and the leaves have gotten a pretty good start, all of which gives them the welcome spring-time touch. Early peaches have just about finished their blooming and are now leafing out. Later peaches are now in full bloom and groves of this kind are a wonderful sight. The millions of pink blossoms give a person that spring-time feeling.

No better time than right now could be selected for a trip through the valley. Everything is fresh and new, the weather is ideal and the roads are all that could be desired. In addition to this there is that "spring fever" with which every one is afflicted.

Starting at Brand boulevard and Broadway we will go west on Broadway to San Fernando road, where turn right and follow this highway through the rapidly built up section, which extends from the highway up to the foothills, with the industrial section on the west side of the highway. About half way to Burbank you will pass the Glendale pumping plant, from which the Glendale water supply is now being secured, and on into Burbank. From Burbank continue north on the Fernando road, pass the large new china factory near which are a number of new and valuable subdivisions, and on through Roscoe, Mulholland, alongside the Southern Pacific tracks into San Fernando, a city of something like ten thousand population.

From San Fernando go west on Brand boulevard (on which the Pacific Electric tracks are located) and continue through that rapidly growing section and on to the San Fernando mission, where the motorist may rest awhile and "take in" the rustic beauty of this prominent feature. After a short stay at the mission continue west past the Sunkissed orange packing house, following the tracks around to the first street, then turn right onto the road leading to Chatsworth. This stretch of road is level, smooth as a table and sufficiently wide for safe travel. It runs through orange and lemon groves, vegetable fields and alongside the wonderful Sunshine ranch, consisting of hundreds of acres, which are now being planted to orange and lemon groves.

Continue along this road until the road leading to "Zelzah" is reached. Turn left here and continue south. All through this part of the country the motorist will find poppies, poppies and more poppies. All that is necessary is to pull up to the side of the road, alight, make your way into the fields nearby and revel to your heart's content in the golden bloom of the California poppy. Plenty of open spaces bearing poppies will be found so that it will not be necessary to trespass on the property close to the homes in that locality.

"Our course will continue south to and through the rapidly growing little town of Zelzah and on down to Marian. Continue through Marian south to the Ventura state highway, which is now one of the most wonderful highways in this section of the state. It has just been resurfaced and is as smooth as a floor. Turn left at this highway and proceed eastward, past the wonderful Adair dairy. This highway runs close to the beautiful Hollywood hills and for miles and miles has just enough rise and drop to keep it from getting tiresome. This street of Ventura highway is bordered by wonderful farms, and orchards—all of which are not to be surpassed anywhere in this section.

Continue eastward past the Hollywood golf club, just east of which the road winds to and fro around the hills, past the entrance to Laurel canyon and on by Universal City and over the Pass to Hollywood. Turn left on Hollywood boulevard and continue to Vermont avenue, where turn left again. Proceed up the hill at the top of which turn right, after which follow the crowd back into Glendale.

Right now is the time to make this trip. To delay one week may mean that the poppies have gone to seed. After picking the poppies keep them in a cool place, and wrap the stems in watersoaked paper, or rags, if possible.

SAFE DRIVERS TO RECEIVE BADGES OF HONOR

Separation of Speed Bugs From Sane Motorists Is Being Accomplished

Safe automobile drivers throughout Southern California are going to be labeled.

If you are a safe driver, Mr. Motorist, you will carry a green and white label in the lower right hand corner of the windshield of your car, according to the latest plan of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

But you will do more than this to further the club's big campaign to cut down recklessness of motorists in the southern counties. You will also sign a pledge when you are given your emblem which committs you to safe driving.

This plan is to be put into operation simultaneously in the 13 southern counties of the state through the county offices of the Auto Club. More than 68,000 motorists are going to be supplied with the new "stickers." Here is what the pledge says:

"In return for the Southern California safe-driver's windshield emblem, furnished by the public safety department of the Automobile Club of Southern California, I agree to drive carefuly at all times, familiarize myself with the city and state traffic regulations and then OBSERVE them.

"I will do all I can to set a good example by being courteous on the road and I further agree that when I dispose of this car I will remove the safe driver's emblem." Signed.

These windshield emblem stickers and the pledges will be available next week at the Auto Club headquarters and at any club branch office. Motorists may obtain them upon request, and they will also be distributed in an effort to further the general safety movement in this part of the state.

LIVE DRY SPARK SEEKS AFFINITY IN GLENDALE

Monro & Pohlman, Distributors of Mac-Dry, Insist on Glendale Agent

"We must have a representative in Glendale," said Munro & Pohlman, distributors for the Mac-Dry battery and the New Master wet battery. "We realize that Glendale is one of the livest cities in Southern California, which means the entire world, and we are going to start some live wire in a battery business that will mean thousands of dollars a year for him. We are a live-wire bunch and nothing but a hustler will satisfy us.

"There is a reason for this. We know we have a quality battery that will stand up under any condition to which a battery may be put Each battery that we turn out is the best that it is possible to produce. It is a quality production and every battery is backed by a written, puncture-proof gurantee.

"We are putting out two styles of battery—a dry battery and a wet battery. Our Mac-Dry, which is fuly guaranteed for three years and which requires no water whatsoever, is without doubt the finest and most fool-proof battery ever produced. You place it in your car and you forget about it. It will not corrode, fires a hotter spark, needs no attention after being placed in your car—in other words, eliminates everything in the way of battery trouble. This battery is made for every type of machine and is sold at prices that compare very favorably with any standard make wet battery.

"We also have the New Master wet battery, which carries a 2-year guarantee. We will place this battery against any wet battery on the market. It is a working fool, and does not know what it means to get tired.

"With these two wonderful batteries to offer the agent it is no wonder that we want the very best kind of a booster and worker to handle our wares. We offer a wonderful proposition to agents and when the right man comes along we will snap him up and both of us will make a lot of money."

TYPE 61 CADILLAC SEEN AT COURT MOTOR CO.

Car Establishes New Record for Service According to Owners

With many thousands of type 61 cars now in the hands of owners, the Cadillac Motor Car company believes it has established a new record for service. Although the Cadillac company has always had an unusually small amount of service after producing a new type, during its history, the type 61 has been astoundingly free from service requirements of all kinds, according to E. C. Garland, technical manager. The type may be seen at the show room of the Court Motor Co., distributors, 228 S. Brand boulevard.

In fact, the service required from the factory has been only one-third of what has ever been required for any other new type of Cadillac during the first six months. Hundreds of letters are received every week praising the unusually satisfactory operation and dependability of the type 61 Cadillac.

While President H. H. Rice was traveling through the west recently he jotted down a few complaints made regarding the type 61. Although he journeyed thousands of miles and talked to hundreds of Cadillac owners and dealers, Mr. Rice was only able to fill a page and a half of a small notebook with observations not complimentary to type 61.

The most obvious indication of public approval is the interest in buying exhibited at the present time. Many cities have had their largest day's business recently. The factory is on a production schedule which exceeds all previous schedules. Business conditions, which are on the upgrade, are renewing the power of the public to purchase a car in which craftsmanship is given superior emphasis.

NEW RULES MADE FOR PEDESTRIANS AND MOTORISTS

Radical Traffic Changes to Be Launched by Auto Club

Pedestrians and motorists have been getting so mixed up lately on the highways that a radical change in pedestrianism is about to be launched on the public by the authorities.

All pedestrians using the highways should walk opposite to the rolling lines of vehicle traffic. That, in a nutshell, is the latest recommendation to be made by the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Auto Club officials representing the safety bureau of the organization are suggesting throughout the state that all persons who must walk along the roads and highways should keep to the left. In other words, the hikers should move just contrary to the movement of the vehicles.

The reason for this is given by club officers in the fact that pedestrians can then see what is approaching them and get out of the way. If the pedestrian is walking with his back to approaching vehicles then he cannot see what is rolling up on him from the rear.

At the same time it is easier for the motorist because he won't have to continually dodge pedestrians who do not hear his approach.

Old hoboes, says the club, always walk in the opposite way to the movement of vehicle traffic. They have learned by many years on the road that this is the best way to avoid accidents.

There is nothing in the state law to prevent pedestrians from adopting this new method of procedure, and it is strongly recommended by the Auto Club. In fact, the new method may at some near date become a part of the state law, so there you are!

RADIO BATTERIES AT WESTINGHOUSE

Battery Service Station Explains Virtues of Utility

"We are headquarters in Glendale for radio batteries," said the manager of the Westinghouse Battery Service, corner Glendale avenue and Colorado street, this morning. "We believe there is not a better battery made than the Westinghouse, which is especially well equipped for radio work. We have a good supply of batteries on hand at this time so that the amateurs will have no trouble in having their needs along this line filled.

"Then, too, we are well equipped to take care of all the battery and ignition troubles of the motorists of Glendale. In our shop we have experts along every line and our clients are given as efficient service as it is possible for anyone to give."

The Barton Bedtime Stories

BOBBY ROBIN TELLS A LIVELIER STORY

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

Maybe Tad Coon's description of the Headless Hunter didn't sound much like an airplane. Not nearly as much as what the Grey Ganders told Dr. Muskrat, or even what Dr. Muskrat told him. But it sounded real enough to satisfy Bobby Robin.

Bobby took it all in with his eyes popping and then flew off to warn his mates. And you just ought to have heard what he told them. According to Bobby, the creature was an enormous bug with a fiery eye which burned anything he looked at. If he peered at a tree its leaves immediately curled up and fell off as if lightning had struck it. He didn't need teeth or beak or tongue to catch his prey; he just drew them right in with the air of his terrible breathing. He could suck the birds out of their trees and the mice out of their very holes as he soared above them.

"Why, the wild geese had a most thrilling escape from him. They were sailing along on the top of a big black cloud bank when they heard his mysterious buzzing below them. Of course they slanted down to see what it was. When the mist cleared away from their eyes they could see him swoop at a great big flock of little birds—warblers, maybe, though the geese couldn't surely say. In an instant he overtook them, passed the spot where the flock had flown. And there wasn't feather in the sky. So the geese could guess what happened. The Headless Hunter had swallowed them. They had hustled back above their cloud in a terrible fluster, and flew off at top flap. He never saw them because his one eye was on the unfortunate little birds."

That's the way the story ran when Bobby Robin got through telling it. Of course it wasn't true. 'Cause not one of those things does an airplane be or do. We know that. But what the birds believed when they finished telling it to each other no one knows.

For when a story passes like this one did from lip to lip and beak to beak it's bound to grow. And there was no one to stop it. The Grey Ganders were gone. Dr. Muskrat was hidden away inside his house, so he didn't hear it, and Tad Coon was snoozing again. He was waiting for the sun to grow warm so he wouldn't mind a wetting. Then it would be a sad day for the frogs.

And You Just Ought to Have Heard What He Told Them.

(But who'd be scandalized if he swallowed every frog in the pond? No one).

But old Dr. Muskrat wasn't sleeping soundly. He was nodding and dozing ,only every time he heard anything he'd cock up his ears and mumble under his whiskers: "What's that? Did anything happen then? Not yet? But it surely will —and very soon."

Next Story: THE HEADLESS HUNTER COMES TO EARTH.

The honesty of your holiness depends on its helpfulness.

IVANHOE HILL IS NEW TRACT ON MARKET

Sensational Offering of Lots Draws Attention to New Territory

The eye of Los Angeles, Glendale and the entire investment element of this world record-making territory is turned with deep interest to the sensational offering of the Ivanhoe Realty company, Ivanhoe Hills, situated near the most picturesque portion of the famous Griffith estates, is the chief topic of discussion of that "knowing" element that has made tremendous profits in new realty tracts, and if ever an offering has come into the spotlight of praise over night, as it were, here is the notable bright-light.

For a long time eager home owners and speculative investors have hoped to see the acreage of Ivanhoe Hills brought into possibility, and this alone accounts in a large measure for the remarkable early interest shown in this desirable section.

Within 10 minutes of Broadway, hill-top homesites overlooking entrancing Silver Lake, Los Angeles' largest body of water, may be had at surprisingly small cost, and on terms to suit the home-owning ambitious.

Here will be found all the conveniences of the most expensive center-of-city homes, but plus all the healthful advantages of a country estate.

Today, Glendalians are privileged to go and look, learn and participate in a pre-opening reservation. If they desire they may call Wilshire 99 and a salesman with a machine for a trip to the tract.

The popular person is always confronting the alternative.

The Lilies. —By Ripley.

— THEY TOIL NOT — NEITHER DO THEY SPIN

A man died in Ohio the other day at the age of more than 100 who had lived next door to a moving picture theater for years and often had been inside the building, but never had seen a picture. He was blind.

Some men try to dodge the issue when they find what they are looking for.

If a man licks the hand that smote him it's because he can't smite the hand that licked him.

Most of the fun in life seems to be in doing something you can't afford to do, and then refusing to regret doing it.

A full elevated train is a high roller.

EASTERN YEGGS MOVING WESTWARD

Sheriffs Along Line Are Watching for Crooks' March

PORTLAND, Ore., Tpril 22.—Warnings have been received here from L. S. May, president of the Northwest Sheriff's association to the effect that eastern yeggs are migrating toward the northwest. Word has also been received that the Idaho authorities have warned bankers in that state to make use of nightwatchmen and guards whenever possible. Bankers throughout the northwest generally have been apprised of the "coming storm" and warned to take every precaution.

Chief Jenkins, of the Portland police department, is of the opinion that a sudden clamping down of the lid in the east, where yeggs have been cracking safes right and left, has caused these gentlemen of the sub-rosa nitroglycerine profession to seek a safe climate for a few weeks until the storm blows over in their native habitats. Officers report a similar migration every few years or so, when it seems as if most of the prominent safe-crackers in the business congregate in one section of the country, pull off a few jabs, and then "blow" to and in some other part of the country, traveling on until its is safe for them to go back home.

It seems as if several prominent financiers who are believed to have opened banks in various parts of the country will spend the spring in the northwest. Society columns may not take much notice of the event, but police annals are sure to contain some nifty tidbits in the "arrival and departure" column. Police are planning to induce a number of these persons to remain a number of years.

The man who makes mistakes and manages so that the other fellow pays for them does not need praying for.

GET YOUR LICENSE PLATE, WARNS AUTO CLUB

Police Throughout State Have Orders Enforcing the Law Stringently

The local headquarters of the Automobile Club of Southern California is warning the motorists of this section to get all little difficulties with regard to their 1922 licenses settled with the least possible delay. The police authorities throughout the state are being instructed to enforce the law with regard to automobile plates, and if the motorist would steer clear of a great big bunch of trouble he will lose no time in having the proper plates attached to his machine.

The Auto Club branch has received a notice which reads about as follows:

"If you haven't your 1922 automobile license plate look out for the police. Final warning has been issued by Director C. J. Chenu of the state motor vehicle department to motorists that they must not display 1921 license plates, but must now have their 1922 licenses, or a certificate to show their plates have been lost or application for same have been made.

"Peace officers throughout the state have been asked by Chenu to enforce the law in their communities. The motor vehicle inspectors in charge of Inspector Steve Neal are now in the San Joaquin valley checking up the situation. They will move to other sections in the immediate future."

People who have plenty of strawberries and cream can't understand why anybody should starve.

That shocked look on a man's face when a sympathetic woman says she "understands" him is probably caused by a hidden fear that maybe she really does.

BAKE-RITE BAKERY OPENS ITS DOORS

Bewildering Display of Novelty Creations in Eatables Shown

The formal opening of the Bake-Rite bakery, one of the most modern and up-to-the-minute bakeries in Glendale, is being held today, at its store at 518 East Broadway. This bakery is an institution of which the people of this city may justly feel proud. The interior of this store has just been completely decorated and renovated, and it would now be hard to find an establishment more appealing and sanitary.

Baking equipment of the very latest has just been installed in this store. All of this is sanitary in the extreme and the patrons of this bakery are sure to get the very best and cleanest there is in the bakery goods that are turned out at this establishment.

Today is a red-letter day for this store. Between the hours of 2 and 8 o'clock the George's orchestra will be on hand and furnish excellent music for the benefit of those who attend this "first day" of this store that is now being operated under entirely new management. Joe O'Conner, former proprietor of this store, is being retained and will oversee the operations of this concern.

This store is one of a series of Bake-Rite stores that may now be found all over the country. The Bake-Rite idea originated in California, it appearing about two and a half years ago in Oakland. Now the Bake-Rite stores do business in nearly every good sized city in the land. The Bake-Rite Bakers is an outgrowth of an original idea. Following the success of the initial Bake-Rite system, the Bake-Rite Bakers was incorporated in August, 1919, to establish Bake-Rite stores, build Bake-Rite ovens, and use the well-known trade name, special formulae and service throughout California, Arizona and New Mexico.

At the opening today a full line of bakery goods of the very highest quality is on display. The plant will be run to capacity to supply the needs of those who come to witness the most interesting and instructive processes of bread, cake and pastry making. Those in charge of this bakery promise the people of Glendale the very best there is in the way of bakery goods. Nothing but the very purest of materials is used in this bakery work, this resulting in A-1 goods. Joe Conner is well and favorably known and his many friends will be glad to learn he has been retained as manager of this popular bakery, which he owned and successfully operated for a long time.

He who thinks he knows it all is rarely a man of large ideas.

ANNANDALE ESTATES ON SALE

Lots on Colorado Blvd. Opposite Country Club, Near Pasadena

The Annandale estates and lots are now being offered to the investigating public of Glendale and vicinity. This property is located opposite the Annandale country club, Colorado boulevard, between Eagle Rock and Pasadena, and is being put on the market by John Sherrod Harris, owner, whose office is at 100 East Colorado boulevard, Pasadena.

Concerning this property the owner says:

"When you buy a lot consider location, restrictions, lay of land and what is going to be built around the addition in which you are placing your money. After you buy it is too late to find out that the lots across the street from you are sold to a class who are going to build 'things' they call houses, which reduce the value of your investment.

"In Annandale Estates you have without question, the location, with golf club links on two sides, then on the east you have highly restricted residence lots and on the north you will find some of the most beautiful estates in Southern California. This all there now. No talk of what there is going to be, but these things are here now ready to be seen.

"I have sold to a class who know my property, too, some of them having known it for 15 or 20 years. Let me take you to see these purchasers. I am not asking the tourists to buy these lots. I am using no bunk—I have the lots and they are priced right, too. There is a public school on the corner, and this is truly a beautiful place to live. All of the improvements intended for this property are in and paid for. Remember, about seven and a half miles from Seventh and Broadway, Los Angeles. Don't take our word for it—come out and see for yourself."

CANADIAN TO TALK ON ENGLISH NOVEL

Summer Session of State University offers attractive courses.

Professor E. K. Broadus of the University of Alberta, equally noted as lecturer and author, is scheduled to give an historical survey of the English novel during the summer session of the State University, Southern Branch. Professor Broadus is a brilliant lecturer, and one of the foremost students of English literature. In addition to the novel course he is to give a series of lectures covering six representative plays of Shakespeare, scheduled for 10 and 11 every morning during the session.

Truths in Epigram

Ships that pass in the night and speak to each other in passing; Only a signal shown and a distant voice in the darkness; So on the ocean of life we pass and speak one another, Only a look and a voice; then darkness again and a silence. — Longfellow (1807-1882).

Often faltering feet come surest to the goal.—Van Dyke (1852).

LOST HIS CROWN

One known as "king of bunko men" has just entered the penitentiary to serve a long term. The crime that led to his conviction was an elaborate swindle in which the victim lost $50,000. There were other misdeeds of the type charged against him. He is not to be further prosecuted. He started to prison expressing himself as determined to take hi "jolt" in a manly fashion, and upon release, to cease his efforts to swindle.

It is singular that a man of the intelligence of this now uncrowned king of bunko should have chosen a career of crime. His personality was such as to carry him into the presence of people of importance in the commercial world. He could have been in a gathering of bankers or successful business men, and pased as one of the group. He had suavity, mental acuteness, magnetism, a command of language. Quick-witted and alert he was ever on the watch for an emergency and ready to meet it. Had he gone into legitimate enterprises, any form of merchandising, the promotion of legitimate schemes, and not yielded to the tendency to be crooked, hardly is it to be doubted that he would have won greater returns than in the bunko game. Having won them it would have been his privilege to keep them, and not expend them in legal fees and the expense of dodging the police.

The bunko individual is hard to reform. His course had been so deliberate a choice, and his methods so keen, as to indicate that he knew all the time what he was about. There is no chance for him to plead sudden impulse. Nevertheless, an individual such as this prisoner can reform is such is his desire, or at least he can conduct himself with full deference to the law concerning his old calling.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

It was but a short term of years back that the armistice was signed. At that time there was great rejoicing. There was also an under-current of misgiving lest clemency had been extended to the undeserving.

The allied armies in the field had been clearing up the situation. They were ready and willing to finish the task they had undertaken. With the task incomplete, their arms were stricken from their hands. As an element in restoring order and assuring peace, the armies became negligible. The great work was turned over to diplomacy and to intriguing politicians. If this was not an error, at least it was something for which the world is suffering now.

It is hard to say, after the animosities of battle have died, after there has been aroused a spirit of amity, and belief that the policy of hatred is wrong; after the nations have been urged to find common ground, and to conduct their relationships with fairness and honesty—after all this, it is hard to say that the mercy of the armistice was a mistake, that it was as the casting of pearls before swine. Had the war been pursued to logical conclusion, the terms made on the field of battle after the Prussians from Wilhelm down had surrendered their swords, there would have been no default in reparation. There would have been today no Germany seeking to evade its debts and to form a coalition from Russia. The bolshevist spirit would have been confined in its operations, to Russia, and so confined, probably would have died out.

It is possible that Germany believes now that united with Russia it may once more reach the dignity of being a world peril. American bolshevists such as Brisbane are chuckling at the prospect. Alluding to the attitude of the allies towards the two outside nationalities, he says: "You cannot make permanent white slaves of two hundred millions of people." Such comment illustrates the crass stupidity of the perverted view.

Under the junkers, the Germans were almost in the condition of slaves. When they were marched away to be killed by millions for a cause in which they had no interest, it could not be said that they were experiencing freedom. Since then the Germans, reaching steadily into the markets of the world, with capitalists embarking on great enterprises; the government declining to levy taxes for payment of debts, and fretting not at all because the debts were not paid, certainly have not seemed to be victims of serfdom more than before.

The millions of Russia virtually are enslaved, not by the allies or in accordance with the wishes of the allies, but by the hideous oligarchy that has seized power there and retains it by violence.

These are the two peoples that Brisbane intimates the allies would enslave, and he and his kind covertly rejoice at the attempted escape.

It is not probable that the so-called treaty between Germany and Russia will be permitted to have effect. A nation resting under such obligations as Germany is, hardly can find the means to expand into a vast territory, and develop the resources there. Russia is rich in raw material. It lacks in leadership that has character and brains. It is not reasonable to assume that it can reach any condition approximating leadership while dominated by the sordid creatures who have made a tragic ruin of it. Therefore it is likely the world feels a greater apprehension than is justifiable. But it would have been spared this apprehension had the armies not been called from the great mission they were performing well.

RECOGNITION OF MEXICO

Happily the people have the utmost confidence in Secretary Hughes. He is a man learned in the law, upright and fearless, and fervid in his devotion to American interests. Therefore they are willing to leave to the administration the entire question of recognizing Mexico. They are not troubled by any thought that the attitude of the United States government may work an injustice to a neighboring people. Therefore the clamorous demand of Hearst that recognition be immediate, is regarded merely as a noise. As between the judgment of a Hughes and a Hearst, sentiment naturally would favor that of Hughes.

It is true that for two republics so closely joined as the United States and Mexico, a full and amicable understanding would be to the advantage of both. Nobody would deny this. It is as obviously true that the representations of Mexico are not being put forth in good faith. Obregon's regime asserts the right to such control over property of every nature there, that the alien investor would be completely at the mercy of officials. The supreme court of Mexico will render any decision that the president of Mexico may desire. The fact is of record that Obregon recently announced one such decision before it had been formulated by the court. Later, when the decision had been received from the bench, it went to Obregon for revision before being made public.

The courts of Mexico care nothing for precedent. It is possible that courts elsewhere sometimes are unduly controlled by precedent. Nevertheless an interpretation of the law, if sustained, should be regarded as having a quality of permanency. In Mexico the supreme court has been known utterly to reverse an accepted interpretation to suit the convenience of a potent litigant. Therefore there is no legal status. There is nothing established. An American company encouraged to invest heavily in Mexico because of some supposed assurance that its rights would be protected, might witness the annulment of these rights. The annulment would be in due form, emanating from the highest court of the land. But it would be arbitrary, not the concomitant of law enforcement, but expressing the will of some individual. At present, the individual would be Obregon.

The matter is too complex and extensive to be discussed with any detail. Wilbur Bates, writing an open letter to Hearst, covers the subject with fullness. His brochure contains about 16,000 words. It is most instructive, and yet familiarity with it is not essential to the average citizen. The question of recognition is in the hands of statesmen conversant with conditions, and with recent history that has led to these conditions. They may be relied upon to act justly and wisely. Mexico will be recognized when worthy, and not before.

After many days a jury has been found for the second trial of Burch. The twelve enter upon their duties in full possession of the sympathy of the public, based on the fact that no verdict they could render would be regarded as satisfactory. Doubtless they will strive to do justice. The trouble is in conflict of opinion as to what constitutes justice.

THE PEOPLE'S PARLOR

By DR. FRANK CRANE

In France and to some extent in other countries of continental Europe the cafe is the people's parlor.

It is not a mere drinking place, as were the saloons in the United States and as are the unclean "pubs" in England.

DR. FRANK CRANE

It does not depend for its attraction entirely upon the fact that it sells intoxicating liquors.

In fact, most of the beverages that are consumed in these cafes are of the mildest character and many of them contain no alcohol at all.

People will sit down at a cafe table and spend an hour in chat, sipping the while perhaps a glass of thin wine which scarcely contains two per cent of alcohol, or quite as often a cup of coffee or of tea, or of water sweetened with syrup.

The European cafe is not usually, as was the case with the American saloon, a place where people go to get drunk. They go there to drink. And there is a difference.

Of course a certain amount of brandy and other strong liquors are consumed. But they are not the rule, and the crowd that gathers in a Paris cafe in the evening is not ordinarily tipsy or boisterous.

This cafe in continental Europe is one of the things that are most striking to an American traveller. Quite often he misunderstands the whole matter and thinks that he is among a people who are universally given to intoxication. But the American who makes this mistake and proceeds to load up on brandy until he has become boisterous soon finds himself to be a man who is marked and shunned.

The cafe is the people's sitting room. It is light and warm and there is company. Consequently not only men sit about in these cafes, but women and often children. Whole families congregate in the German beer gardens and in the French, Italian and Spanish cafes.

The influence of these respectable women is felt. To the European there is nothing disgraceful in spending an hour in the cafe and he cannot understand the disreputability of the Anglo-Saxon drinking place.

Recently some of the cafes in Paris have invited artists to send in pictures and have exhibited them upon the walls free of charge. It is understood that these pictures can be bought. Space, of course, is limited and the lighting is almost always bad. But the public are pleased with the idea and some sales are made.

In other parts of Paris at the hour of the "aperitif" or, as we say, at tea time, from four to seven in the afternoon, the dressmakers have taken to exhibiting their latest models and the fashionable public, while they linger over their tea and cakes, can inspect the mannequins who are displaying the most recent creations in fashion.

Somehow there is a brightness to this life and an element of sociability in it and of gentle humanity that makes it attractive. And we might wish that the customs of the English-speaking world were such that it were able to adopt this manner without soiling it with excessive drinking of alcoholic beverages and the consequent vulgarity.

AT THE LISTENING POST

Are you hitched to something?
An idea or an ideal or a job or a business or an activity of some kind?
Are you applying what you know?
Or what strength or ability you may have?

* * *

Out on the prairies you see windmills.
You see them sometimes hereabouts.
And they are driven by the wind through the air.
Making revolutions sometimes fast and sometimes slow.

Somebody has fashioned them and set them up in the air.
To be driven by the wind.
Of which there is a lot in the world.
There is perhaps force and power enough in the wind and tides, the great natural forces of the earth, to do all the work of the world.
If we could get it hitched up.

* * *

Just as there is force and power enough in you to do a goodly share of the work of the world, if you get it hitched up.
Think of the lifting force of the tides of the world!
Hitched up to something, it would move the mountains from their bases.
Drive all the shafting and belting of all the factories of the world.
The power of the tides is incalculable.
But up to the present time it has not been hitched to anything.

* * *

But there is no telling what the future may bring.
There may be no need for coal.
For water power as at present use.
Science may merely harness the tides of the earth.
And give us heat, light and power.

But we have already made some use of the power of the wind.
We drive windmills with it.
But merely to drive windmills about through the air would mean nothing in particular.
So we hitch them to rods and things and draw water out of the earth.

* * *

We hitch them to something and make them do something.
Just as the trained individual is hitched to something.
A job.
An idea or an ideal or a service of some kind.
And he adds something to the wealth of the world.

Well—
Here you are, with education.
Ability.
Strength.
Religion.
Philosophy.
Hitched to what?

* * *

For religion and education and philosophy, not hitched to something, are merely windmills revolving in the air.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Poems of Nature—William Wadsworth (1770-1850)

The world is too much with us; late and soon,
Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers:
Little we see in Nature that is ours;
We have given our hearts away, a sordid boon!
This sea that bares her bosom to the moon,
The winds that will be howling at all hours,
And are up-gathered now like sleeping flowers;
For this, for everything, we are out of tune;
It moves us not—Great God! I'd rather be
A Pagan suckled in a creed outworn;
So might I, standing on this pleasant lea,
Have glimpses that would make me less forlorn;
Have sight of Proteus rising from the sea;
Or hear old Triton blow his wreathed horn.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

"Rights" are not nearly as great as privileges. We may very easily deceive ourselves into thinking that they are. But that does not alter the truth. "Rights" are very hard to define, anyway. They differ so according to the individual view. They are very seldom worth the fight we make to get them.

When we get a bit wiser and look through life for its privileges instead, we shall find it open up to us as a lily opens its beauty. For "rights" are rigid and commonplace often. Privileges are full of beauty, and scatter it with their use.

Work is privilege, love is privilege, sacrifice is privilege, creation is privilege. Take these four out of life, and but the dregs remain. Oh, no; we don't call them that. We can even deceive ourselves into thinking that we want none of the four, and can have happier, freer lives without them. But self-deception is a dangerous thing. Without work, love, sacrifice, creation, life has no real gifts to offer—only Dead Sea fruit, bitter in the end.

It's hard to realize this, so many of us live so on the surface of things. We love after a fashion, to be sure; we work because we have to, dissatisfied because of the need; we give up also from stern necessity; many times we deny the power of creation, so that for us it does not exist. We twist circumstances, is fortune more favorable, so that other people must encounter the stern realities of life and we are freed for luxury and pleasure.

We think that we are happy—not knowing the wonderful delights of sharing in the real work of the world and helping to lift its loads for others. "Rights," or privileges—which?

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

A MISUSED WORD

[Milwaukee Sentinel]

Psychology has taken a strong hold on the popular imagination. The study and practice of this interesting science have spread rapidly, and its application to practical every-day problems is becoming more general.

However, Dr. Mark A. Place, head of the department of psychology at Syracuse university, is moved to protest against what he terms misuse of the word.

"If some of what these self-styled psychologists teach is psychology," says Dr. Place indignantly, "then what I teach is something else."

Whereupon he proceeds to set forth a few of the things placarded as psychology, which he insists should be stripped of that label. Among them he names the study of the mysterious, occult and spooky; psychical research, mind reading, fortune telling, palmistry and observation of the bumps on the heads. There is some reason perhaps for a little popular confusion of the science of psychology with occult research and spiritism, whose investigators use the terms "psychic" and "psychical" without impropriety. They are enough like the name of Dr. Place's specialty to excuse the use of the wrong word occasionally.

But, as the professor points out, there are a lot of things going on to which we loosely attached the word psychology which in reality have nothing to do with that subject and which, conceivably may create prejudice against its study and development.

Dr. Place defines psychology as "the study of human nature," which is a pretty broad generalization and leaves one wishing he had been a little more specific. However, the definition is sufficiently adequate to accentuate the impropriety of using the word in connection with spirit manifestations, palm reading or the feats of vaudeville occultists who tell your inmost secrets from the stage if you so much as loan them your handkerchief.

PRESIDENT HARDING'S TURN

[New York Times]

It has been the pretense of the bonus seekers for weeks that Mr. Harding doesn't mean what he has said and written. How much longer can he sit silent under the odious implication that he will eat his own words and not sustain his own administration? Two courses are possible for him. He can privately make known his wishes to members of the senate, which has congested business enough and ways of its own enough to delay, amend and stifle the bill.

There is the open, more honorable and manlier course of reiterating decisively and unmistakably his objections to the dishonest and perilous project. By so doing he would put an end to the equivocations of the enemies of the treasury and rally to himself that public confidence which his party in congress has forfeited. By courage, and only by courage, can he reassert his personal and political dignity and save what of his party is capable of salvage. It is his best opportunity to show that he is a leader with will, energy and a full conception of his momentous responsibility, and not the slight, unmeritable man the bonus chasers seem to believe him to be. To be sure, their conduct is susceptible of another interpretation. It may be that they are looking to him to save them, or to save the party and the country, from the mess into which they have plunged with so apparent ardor.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

To a Long Beach policeman has fallen the distinction of shooting three undesirables. The first two were burglars caught in the act. The third was prowling about at night heavily armed. He tried to kill the policeman, but was not swift enough. There is a theory that his purpose was to avenge the fate of the former two representatives of the underworld.

HENRY JAMES

To kill anybody is a disagreeable human activity, and yet when it has been done in line of duty, the results stir a sense of satisfaction. These fellows who ride about at night, robbing and shooting decent citizens, breaking into houses, raiding cash wherever it is to be found, all deserve to be killed. In fact, there is no other way of dealing with them that could be half so effective, or go so far towards elevating the moral average of the community. The policeman who hits one of murderous ruffians in a vital spot has bestowed a public favor.

American cities are beginning to be infested by a type approximating the Paris Apache. Merciless, bloodthirsty thugs and thieves, they are not susceptible to reform except through violence that ends their earthly careers. They have bereft themselves of all right to consideration, and the problem of exterminating them is a mere question of shooting quick, straight and often.

Grandfather Rockefeller may not be pleased with his granddaughters, but he should not let this interfere with his golf game. One of these girls is about to marry a foreigner who trains horses, or keeps a livery stable, both perfectly respectable callings. That fact that he is old enough to be her father has been mentioned, but that, too, is a family affair.

The other granddaughter appears on the stage as a boy, a role that of course eliminates the skirt altogether. The flapper has habituated the public to so little skirt, that perhaps this stage stunt does not shock even grandfather as it might a few years ago.

The Chicago girl who ran away from church and left her expectant groom waiting there, in about as silly a situation possible to the male of the species, has arrived in London. She sends back word that she is to be married in June.

Outside of her immediate circle it may be said nobody cares whether she is married in June, or never. Yet there is some interest incited by the fact that the groom scheduled for the belated performance is the same chap once so cruelly abandoned on the church steps.

If he cares to win public respect, he'll be the one to skip out next time.

Congress has earned the gratitude of the country by its stand on the navy bill. That it upheld the administration is a direct triumph for the President. This, however, is not the main point.

A coterie of little navy men had undertaken to scuttle even the modest navy fixed as the standard by the four-power pact. They sought to place the United States below Japan in naval strength instead of on equality with England.

They were defeated, as they deserved to be defeated. Now it is up to them to be ashamed, if they have any capacity for penitence.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Don't tell me they never come back. They do come. I've seen 'em. Any man can come back who has enough left in him to form a resolution and keep it. And I don't care whether he is a victim of hasheesh or plain laziness. One is as bad as the other.

Last time I saw Archibald K. Mains he was as fine a type of fatty degeneration as you could find in a day's ride. He hung in wrinkles, sartorial and fleshy. His eyes were dull, his dewlap rested on his collar, he went to sleep after lunch, and his conversation was as interesting as a goat's. He thought he was all right. It never occurred to him that anything was wrong until his wife took him in hand.

"I loved the man I married," said she. "But he is buried. I'm not going to live with a lump of dormant flesh. Either you come back to your old self or you lose me."

Archibald didn't care. The chances are he went to sleep and forgot about it. But that night she left. For a few days Archie mooned around, waiting for her to return. When he found she was not coming he went to work. I do not know what he did, except that his lunch used to consist of an apple and he cut out drink and cigars and walked down to the office and spent an hour on the floor of the Y gym and twenty minutes in the electric dryer.

Well, he came back. There isn't a doubt of that. Archy is the liveliest young man of his years in town. He has a waist like a floor walker and rubber in his heels and he is a bear at Kelly pool and tailors faint on the streets when he refuses their entreaties to permit them to create for him. That eye of his is as hard and bright as an eagle's He hasn't slept after lunch since the day his wife went away.

Speaking about Mrs. Mains. She doesn't seem entirely happy. She says that Archy doesn't spend a single night at home any more. He is always dragging her to the theater or bridge parties or dances or something. She looks back on the nice, quiet evening at home with tears in her eyes. When she refuses to go out Archy goes alone.

Oh, Archy has come back all right. But it looks as though Mrs. M. will have to begin coming back herself. Sometimes a come-back travels faster than when he was a colt.

FILL CORNER STONE WITH AUTO RECORDS

The esteem which educational circles hold the touring facilities of Southern California has been evidenced by the laying of the cornerstone of the new $400,000 high school at Santa Maria in the southern part of the state.

When the cornerstone was laid, touring literature of all kinds was put within its recesses. If ever it is opened in future ages, when excavations are being conducted on the buildings of the present era, the archaeologists of another time will find that the "open road" figured prominently in the activities of today.

In the corner-stone are copies of the latest road report issued by the Automobile Club of Southern California, auto catalogues and a copy of Touring Topics, the club's official magazine. Can you beat that?

Test the tire pump, especially the rubber tubing and the connections. If the leather piston head in the hand pump has dried up, it can be softened by an application of vaseline.

The proper way to fill a radiator is to keep the engine running slowly. This plan will circulate the water through the entire system.

RANDALL DEFENDS PRESENT CONGRESS

Declares Former Associates Striving Hard for the General Good

By CHARLES H. RANDALL
Member of Congress, 1915 to 1921

What is the matter with Congress? No Congress in the history of the American government has been so universally condemned by press and public as the present one. The editorial columns of the great newspapers of both parties are full of scathing criticism. The cartoonists are having a veritable revel in picturing the incapacity, asininity and duplicity of the lower house especially.

Having been up to the present Congress, a member for six years of the House of Representatives, I desire to utter my protest that the individual members of that house do not deserve this criticism. Close observance and intimate acquaintance with nearly three hundred members of the lower house constrain me to say there is a large majority who are able and progressive, and honestly striving to serve the country's best interests in that house.

That they are not succeeding will be admitted of course, but that is due to another cause, over which the individual membership is powerless, under the system which operates the House of Representatives. That "cause" is covered completely by two words, "party control." Under the party lash, represented in the party caucus, the steering committees and the standing committee alignment, which not only gives the minority party much smaller representation but actually excludes the minority members from the committee room while tariff or reveue bill is being framed, the individual member of Congress who is either a democrat or republican, becomes an actual serf. He must obey the mandate which comes to him, or he will be "broken" politically. We witnessed recently the remarkably frank public statement of Dr. Fess, chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, who declared that republican members of Congress would not be supported by the committee for re-election if they strayed from the reservation—that is if they voted independently. This sort of warning is usually confined to the cloak rooms about the House of Representatives.

Independence of thought and liberty of action on the part of a member of Congress would be the greatest boon which could come to the national legislature. There are hundreds of men in the House of superior attainments and lofty purpose, whose service to the country would be brilliant in the people would set their stamp of disapproval upon the system of party slavery now controlling the lower house of Congress. It is all right to say that we must have party government, but let the parties be subject to the virile independence of a large "balance-of power" contingent and you will see instant improvement in methods and purposes of legislation.

George Washington in his farewell address warned his countrymen of the evils of partisanship. "Let me warn you in the most solemn manner," said he, "of the baneful effects of the spirit of party generally. It serves always to distract the public councils and enfeebles the public administration."

Theodore Roosevelt once said in an address that "partisanship has been the cause of more inefficiency and corruption in government than all other reasons combined."

In a later communication I would be glad to give your readers an insight into the second greatest curse which afflicts Congress—namely, the efforts of private and selfish interests to prevent or secure legislation.

This movement has secured a strangle hold in Washington which would dumfound the ordinary person if he knew the ramifications by which it controls the actions of members of Congress. Propoganda factories, 800 of them in Washington, run their presses night and day, spreading doctrines designed to warp the minds of not only the Congressmen but of the constituents into believing in a law, whose hidden motive is to enrich the interest which spreads the propaganda.

VAUDEVILLE AND HUGHES AT THE GLENDALE

Weekly Bill Replete With Amusement and Locally Staged Film

The weekly vaudeville to play at this house is comprised of five clever, novel, vaudeville offerings. Murl and Newton, "The Clerk and the Girl," should prove a laughing hit with their cleverly constructed comedy offering, and snappy patter. Alanson, in his original pantomimic novelty and comedy manipulation will prove a special delight to the kiddies. Zolar and Knox, "The Piano Fiend and the Jazz Girl," will tickle the taste of the music lovers, their musical cycle runs the gauntlet from grand opera to the latest musical hits from Broadway. European Musical Four, a mixed quartet of clever entertainers in a high class musical novelty offering will add materially to the quality of the bill.

Residents of Burbank, Calif., citizens of the town whose namesake has for many years astounded the world with mongrel vegetables, such as the spineless cactus, the leafless cabbage and the thornless lettuce, underwent the rare sensation of astonishment when Gareth Hughes, star of the Metro release, "Garments of Truth," now showing at the Glendale theatre, was given an ovation at the railroad station by 200 townspeople of Burbank who didn't live there.

The townless townspeople were the ten-score extras engaged by George D. Baker, director of this S-L (Arthur Sawyer-Herbert Lubin) picture for Metro, in order that the homecoming scene in the photoplay based on Freeman Tilden's story be strictly according to script. Although the maker of the George D. Baker production realized that an announcement of the advent of Gareth Hughes to the California town would bring out many more than 200, he feared that a crowd uncontrolled by the pay envelope might not take his direction exactly. Hence his insistence upon a made-to-order aggregation, and also upon a special train and crew.

Besides the star, Mr. Hughes, and the 200 welcomers, other members of the cast are: Ethel Grandin, John Steppling, Graham Pettie, Margaret McWade, Walter Perry, Frank Norcross, Harry Loraine, Frances Raymond, Herbert Prior and Sylvia Ashton.

ROLAND SQUARE MAKES GOOD IN WEEK

New McCarthy Subdivision Proves Wisdom of Buying for Future

J. Harvey McCarthy, whose claims to the paternity of 26 home subdivisions either in or near Los Angeles, makes him out one of the most active real estate men in this section of Southern California, says he is once more in the "I told you so," class. This distinction is due him, Harvey McCarthy says, by reason of the success of his newest subdivision, Roland Square, in the northwest section.

"When I announced a few months ago that I was 'coming back to Glendale,' some of my friends told me I was making a mistake. They said I'd better stick to Los Angeles and intimated that, while they acknowledged I knew something about values of real estate in that city, I was straying into unknown fields by going to Glendale, where I might easily make mistakes. But I knew Glendale of old and I'd never entirely lost touch with its wonderful progress. So I bought Eagle Glen Heights on East Broadway, and it has been a big winner. Now comes Roland Square, on West Doran street. Opened only two weeks ago I've already had to announce that if any one wants to buy a building lot there for a home he had best 'step lively!'

"The fact is," said Harvey McCarthy, "that you can't well make a mistake in Glendale property. It is all good, though some of it is better than others. I believe there isn't anything better than Roland Square, and the records of its success are there to back me up."

Active work on the street and publicity improvements is being pushed on this tract, the local agents, Dartt & Anderson, announce, and very soon all streets will have been cut through, graded, and built, the curbs put in and the sidewalks paved. Several residences have been planned and actual building operations on the first of them is ony a matter of days.

ST. LAWRENCE PLANTS

A new bulletin just published by the Canadian department of mines at Ottawa for the Victoria Memorial museum, and written by Harold St. John, assistant professor of botany at the State College of Washington, tells of his "Botanical Exploration of the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence" and includes an annotated list of the species of vascular plants.

In illustration there are engravings of the shingle beach and limestone sea-cliff at Eskimo island; a mountain lake on the Petit Mecatina; typical islands of the Laurentian area; a view over the Romaine river to the elevated tundra beyond; the Sea Star in Shekatika bay; the valley of Shekatika river; the calcereous tableland at Blanc-Sablon; the shore of Ile Perroquets; strand vegetation, and matted vegetation on the sand dunes at Blanc-Sablon. There are also two excellent maps of the region in a pocket of the back cover.

TESTING CIRCLES

The April issue of The Farmer's Wife prints a picture of Miss Minerva Lawrence with an article on her work in establishing Testing Circles throughout Washington to help save time and strength for farm women and other housewives. She is state home management specialist for the extension division of the state college.

Every motorist should equip his car with a cold patch kit for punctures, a blow-out patch for emergency use, a can of soapstone, a roll of tape for tire or ignition trouble, a tire gauge for testing inflation and a good "spare."

Come Dwell in The Hills of IVANHOE

You are tired of the "long daily drag" between the house and your "downtown" office.

For months you have passed, on Glendale Blvd., only 3 miles from Broadway, picturesque Ivanhoe Hills, held in acreage as a part of the Griffith estate. Often you have thought how convenient would be a home on their slopes, overlooking the San Fernando valley and Glendale, and offering a panorama of the Sierra Madres. Possibly you have even pictured the joy of a "before-breakfast" walk along the quiet waters of Silver Lake.

All these things are possible now.

Large, well restricted homesites may be purchased on Ivanhoe Hills. Water is in. Building may start at once. Gas and electricity are within a day's work from the tract. We pay for all improvements.

Courteous salesmen will call for you on request.

RESOLUTION NO. 1462

A RESOLUTION OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE ORDERING CERTAIN IMPROVEMENTS TO BE MADE ON PORTIONS OF CHESTNUT STREET, AND OF CERTAIN STREETS INTERSECTING THEREWITH IN THE CITY OF GLENDALE.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE:

SECTION 1. That the improvement herein described is required by the public interest and convenience, and the Council of the City of Glendale, State of California, hereby orders the improvement to be made on which is described in Resolution of Intention No. 1417, passed by the Council of the City of Glendale, March 16th, 1922, to which said Resolution reference is hereby made for a description of said work.

SECTION 2. The district to be assessed to pay the cost and expenses of said work and improvement is described in said Resolution of Intention No. 1417, to which said Resolution reference is hereby made for further description of said assessment district.

SECTION 3. Bonds will be issued to represent assessments of $25.00 or over, as provided for in said Resolution of Intention No. 1417.

SECTION 4. The Glendale Daily Press, a daily newspaper of general circulation, published and circulated in said City of Glendale, is hereby designated as the newspaper in which this Resolution and notice inviting street work proposals shall be published in the manner and form and by the persons required by law.

SECTION 5. The City Clerk of the City of Glendale is hereby directed to post conspicuously for five days on or near the chamber door of the Council in the manner and form required by law, a notice with Specifications inviting street work proposals or bids for doing said work; and said City Clerk is hereby directed to publish for two days in said newspaper hereby designated for that purpose, as aforesaid, in the manner and in the form required by law, a notice of said work inviting sealed proposals or bids for doing said work, and referring to the Specifications posted or on file.

Said notice shall require all proposals or bids offered to be accompanied by a certified check or bond, either, as prescribed by law, and for an amount not less than ten per cent of the aggregate of the proposal.

Said City Clerk is also hereby directed to publish this Resolution for two days in the manner required by law, in said newspaper designated for that purpose, as aforesaid.

Adopted and approved this 20th day of April, 1922.

Theory of Condensers

The action which takes place in the condenser may be compared with that taking place in a tube. At one part of the tube a thin rubber diaphragm is inserted, while at a point opposite it a blower is located. When the blower is operated there will be a displacement of the air in the circuit, depending upon the pressure created by the blower and the stretch of the rubber diaphragm. The moment the blower is stopped the pressure throughout the circuit will again be equalized by the elascity of the diaphragm bringing it back to its normal plane. But if the pressure should be beyond the strength of the rubber diaphragm, the latter will be broken and the air will circulate thru the tube freely.

When current flows into a condenser the potential difference of the condenser rises until it equals that of the charging source, so that the moment the voltage of the charging current decreases, the condenser discharges back into the circuit.

The unit of capacity is the Farad so consequently capacities of condensers are measured in Farads or Micro-Farads. A micro-farad is one millionth of a farad. Micro-farad is the term more often used as it was found that the farad was too large a unit for accurate measuring of the condensers used in radio receiving. A condenser has a capacity of one farad when it will be charged to one volt by one culomb of electricity.

The formula for calculating the capacity of a condenser is:

(Area of the opposed surfaces X the inductive capacity of the dielectric X 2248) divided by (the thickness of the dielectric 10.10). The result will be in rating of micro-farads.

A condenser consists of conducting surfaces placed parallel to each other and separated by a dielectric or non-conductor. Modern types of condensers consist of copper, zinc, aluminum or tinfoil plates separated by glass, mica, hard rubber, electrose composition or oil, which forms the dielectric. The conductive property of dielectrics is termed the specific inductive capacity, air being used as a standard.

(To Be Continued.)

Technical Terms Defined

Farad—The farad is the unit of capacity and is such capacity of conductor of condenser that a standard culomb of electricity is required to produce therein a difference in potential of one standard volt.

Culomb—The culomb is the unit of the quality of electricity. It represents the quantity of electricity that would pass in one sec-onr through a circuit conveying one standard ampere. In other words, it is an ampere-second.

Volt—The standard volt is defined as 1-1.0183 of the voltage of a standard western cell. It is the unit of electromotive force.

Ampere—The standard ampere is the rate of flow of a steady current which one standard volt pressure forces through one ohm of resistance.

Ampere-Hhour — The ampere-hour is used in connection with storage batteries in preference to the watt to express the capacity of the battery. it is the flow of a current of one ampere for one hour.

Small Units—For wireless work some of the above units are too large. Consequently, they are divided into a thousand or a million parts denoted respectively by the prefixes "milli," and "micro." Thus milli-ampere means one-thousandth of an ampere and micro-volt or micro-farad means one millionth volt or one millionth farad.

A Word of Explanation

The magnavox or aplifying horn which The Press is using at present, in connection with their set, is not the proper capacity but is all that could be obtained at the time of installing the set. There is another and large Magnavox on the way which will make a marked improvement on the quality and audibility of the signals to our audience.

The Kinema theatre used their broadcasting hours yesterday to good advantage. They used it for testing and improving their signals and I am sure everyone that heard "I am waiting for you in California," will admit it was wonderful Did you notice that there was no accompanying scratching, except the once when a naval radio station interfered. Also the piano selections which they rendered were exceptionally good.

Hints

If you are using a variable condenser and you are having trouble with your bulb or are noticing that the set seems to change adjustment by itself, take a piece of cheesecloth and clean the plates of the condenser.

If you are using a rheostat and it operates poorly, take a little denatured alcohol and a brush and rinse—or rather brush the dust from the rheostat with the brush dampened with the alcohol.

Bit of Switzerland Back of Glendale is Fairyland

By JOHN H. GERRIE
Prosperity Editor Glendale Daily Press

Up back of Glendale there's a little bit of Switzerland in America. A dozen boulevards lead out of Los Angeles to it, all converging at Glendale into the Verdugo road. Then you whiz along a winding scenic highway between the San Rafael mountains and the green Verdugo hills and before you know it you are in the midst of a California fairyland.

John H. Gerrie

The sage-scented foothills are all around you, the majestic Sierra Madre looms above all, you breathe the balmy atmosphere of the highlands, fragrant with aromatic odors of wooded canyons, you listen to the dreamy music of soft running brooks and your senses are further soothed by the calm coolness of giant sycamores and spreading oaks. You might be a thousand miles away from the rush of any city, but you're not—you are only nine miles from the center of Los Angeles and only two miles from the heart of Glendale.

You are, of course, in beautiful Verdugo Woodlands.

What other great city in the world can present at its very door such a scene of fairy charm, hidden away in the alluring contours of a mountain range and two ridges of foothills and offering so many surprises and so many delights to either casual visitor or permanent home-maker? For, though one might reasonably expect this Verdugo wonderland to be forever reserved as a beautiful public park for travellers and city folk, it is destined as a residential park de luxe for the favored few who acquire home sites there now at the surprisingly reasonable rates at which they are offered.

Already many picturesque homes are rising along the wooded slopes, on miniature hilltops or amid the live oaks and sycamores and elders of the smiling valley. Practically every possible home site possesses a charm distinctly its own, in varying vistas of knolls and vales and mountains, in proximity of grand old trees and babbling brooks or in commanding outlook upon deep shaded canyons. wooded trails and almost primitive wildness of foothill scenery.

If you have not already visited this Glendale fairyland no printed words can convey an adequate impression. If other plans are not imperative, drive out there Sunday and eat your luncheon beneath the wide-spreading oak that was standing when Columbus discovered America, or in any of the groves of sycamores and elders with which the natural amphitheatre is studded.

When you go, not only will you see a bit of Switzerland in America but you also will see a bit of the Philippines in America. Rather a remarkable combination to be sure, but decidedly adding to the fairyland effect, for the two blend harmoniously into the Verdugo picture as if intended by nature to be found together.

The Philippines representation is of a great palm pavilion, inviting in its spacious coolness, with low, sloping roof made entirely of palm leaves, some 7,000 leaves being carefully laid, layer upon layer, impervious alike to the glare of the sun or torrents from the skies. The only other material used in the construction of this Far East pavilion is eucalyptus wood for uprights, beams, joints and trusses. Some twenty-five tons of eucalyptus trunks and branches, trussed in the center so that no pillar mars the interior of the structure, supports the palm roof, which is estimated to weigh fifteen tons. On either side of the main pavilion are pergolas extending to miniature pavilions, the entire structure presenting an architectural treat that fits in with the picturesque landscape.

The creator of this novel and decidedly attractive feature is George Harris, noted landscape artist and foremost exponent of the new "fashioned-by-nature" art. The pavilion is only part of his work in Verdugo Woodlands, for he is fashioning rustic seats and steps and tables among clumps of trees in the vales and on the hillsides. He follows the rules of nature so closely that his creations blend with their surroundings as if placed by the same power that fashioned the neighboring hills and trees.

The Philippine pavilion will be formally opened this Sunday.

In honor of the occasion luncheon is to be served free within the palm pavilion to all who visit Verdugo Woodlands at the luncheon hour. Those who find it more convenient to come later may bring their baskets and picnic beneath oaks and sycamores on tables fashioned by Professor Harris and in rustic seats that will recall to mind early woodland tales of gnomes and elfins and other mystic creatures of the woods.

When you reflect that Verdugo Woodlands, added to its attractions already outlined, is at a high, healthful altitude, with cooling breezes from the ocean filtering through tempering valleys, is safeguarded from fogs, dampness, smoke, noise, dust and extremes of heat or cold, and that it is only five minutes by motor from the shops, theatres and churches of Glendale and only half an hour from the business center of Los Angeles, you will begin to wonder why such a Garden of Eden has been left unclaimed up to this late date.

Drive out and see it Sunday and you'll wonder still more.

HOPE

Now what do I care if the Winter
Was dreary and long?
The bright meadowlarks and the robins
Have come back with their song.

What do I care if the snow
Lay on meadow and hill?
The waters go bubbling and singing
By brook and by rill.

What do I care if the trellis
Was leafless and bare?
The spring has come back with its roses
All clustering there.

What do I care if the heavens
Were cloudy and gray?
The sun has come back in his glory,
And shines there today.

Ah yes, there is sadness and sorrow,
And tears they may bring,
But Tomorrow, Tomorrow, Tomorrow,
Ah, then shall we sing!
